NEW BATTLE RAGING IN STREETS OF BARCELONA

LONDON, July 31.—The revolt in Barcelona has broken out again, according to dispatches received here to-day, and is gaining in strength hourly. All the reserves have been called out, and the army is being placed on a war footing.

Artillery failed to dislodge the revolutionists in several quarters of Barcelona, and the rebels renewed hostilities with redoubled vigor. All the troops possible are being mustered to crush the rebellion and put down the Moroccan war with the utmost speed.

Commander Burgos and an army corps has arrived at Bilbao, the capital of the province of Biscay, to suppress the general strike.

GET PREVIOUS QUESTION ON TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, July 31.—A filibuster on the tariff was begun as soon as the House met to-day. Representative Mondell of Wyoming, one of the anti-free raw materials Republicans, objected to Representative Payne's request that his statement be read instead of the conference report. Therefore, the clerk started in on the task.

After the clerk had read for about two and a half hours Representative ePjne removed his motion to dispense with the reading of the report. This was done. Representative Dalzell of Pennsylvania reported the special rule of the Committee on Rules providing that no point of order should hold against any provision in the bill and that a vote be taken not later than 8 o'clock to-night. The rule provided that members should have leave to print on the report. By a standing vote of 150 to 62 the previous question was ordered.

Representative Dalzell then made a brief statement relative to the duty on boots and shoes, which made necessary the rule. Representative Clark of Missouri asked if there was any other item in the bill on which the duties had been increased beyond that contained in the bill as it passed the House and Senate. Representative Dalzell replied that he believed not.

There are indications that after all the dickering and trading the conference report on the bill may not have smooth sailing through the Senate. It is not improbable that a filibuster may be started which will delay the final passing of the measure indefinitely. This filibuster is being organized by Senator Bailey and is prompted by the fact that the conference committee took cotton bagging from the free list, where it had been placed by the Senate through the efforts of the Southern Democrats, and again placed it upon the dutiable list.

NOTED BANKER DEAD BY AUTO

NEW YORK, July 31.—Cornelius C. Cuyler, president of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company of this city, and prominent in financial and civic affairs, is dead in Biarritz, France, as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident. News of his death was received here to-day.

Cornelius C. Cuyler and his wife, who is a sister of Delancy Nicoll, sailed for Europe in the early Summer for an automobile tour of the Continent. They were among the most prominent people socially in New York. Mr. Cuyler before her second marriage being the widow of James Brown Lord, one of New York's famous architects. Their marriage three years ago was one of the important events of the social season.

Mr. Cuyler, a brother of Dewitt C. Cuyler, was one of the oldest and most aristocratic of New York families. Wealthy and high in financial circles, he was nevertheless much given to study and the arts. He was a life trustee of Princeton University, member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, Historical, Genealogical and Biological societies, treasurer of the School of Classical Studies in Rome and was identified with the cultural and artistic life of New York for years.

He was a member of the firm of Cuyler, Morgan & Co., bankers, and director in the Mercantile Trust, United States Guarantee Company, Mobile & Ohio Railroad. Guarantee Company of North America, Commercial Trust Company of New Jersey, the Orange National Bank and many other financial concerns. He was a member of the Union, Princeton, Lawyers', University, Glee, Century and Downtown Clubs.

RACE TRACK STORY—If you like the excitement of the dash around the track, read "Mrs. Beckwith's Gamble," to appear in the Sunday American.

3 VILLAGES IN PERIL OF FOREST FIRE

BOURNE, July 31.—A fierce forest fire which started near here at 11 o'clock today is being swept by a strong northeast wind directly toward the villages of Pocasset, North Falmouth and Hatchville, and it is feared that damages that may reach into the thousands will result, as the 500 men who are fighting the conflagration don't seem to make the least headway in their battle.

The fire at 2 o'clock this afternoon was blazing over an area about a mile and a half in length and a mile in width. There is no open space between the villages and the woods at which the fire fighters may make anything like a formidable stand.

The fire wardens of the various villages summoned every able-bodied man to join in the fight. They carried shovels and spades and began digging trenches with the hope that they would be able to check the blaze when it reached the fresh earth.

Prepare to Flee Homes.

In the various homes that lay in the danger zone the women and children got busy and wet down the roofs and walls of their homes so that they would not ignite from the burning embers that were carried great distances by the wind. Many of the occupants of the houses got ready for flight by packing up their portable belongings.

Cranberry bogs that are heavy with berries and owned by Frank Erwin, Fred Greer, David Nye and Aaron Swift, lie right in the track of the oncoming flames. The bogs cover about forty acres and are very valuable. A terrific fight was made to save the berries, but the heat was so intense and the smoke so dense that the men were forced to leave their positions and it looked as though the bogs were doomed to destruction.

Believe Fire Was Set.

The homes that were in greatest danger were those of David Nye, a selectman of Bourne; Fred Greer, James West, Aaron Swift and Miss Fannie Hardy.

Frank Chadwick, who was driving through the woods, discovered the fire. He said that he saw a man moving from the spot where the blaze apparently started.

"I rallied to the man," said Chadwick, "but he paid no attention to me. He started to run. It looked very much as though he had something to do with starting the fire."

The fire is the worst that has been on the Cape this year. The trees are of oak and pine. The fire shot up the tall pines and leaped into the air for a distance of fifty feet and was of a most spectacular character.

The burning embers, blazing as they were, would fall high in the air to the bay, a quarter of a mile away, and fall blazing into the water. The smoke rolled out in great black billows and covered a great section of the Cape.

MIKE DONLIN'S BROTHER DEAD

CHICAGO, July 31.—James Donlin, brother of Mike Donlin, baseball player, is dead in the County Hospital. He was found Thursday in an unconscious condition in a shack in West Hammond, Ill. Frank Green, a justice of the peace, went to Donlin's assistance, collected a purse of $100 and sent him to the hospital for treatment. His illness resembled paralysis. A sister, Mamie Donlin, is here to say to Chicago from her home, in Erie, Pa.

ONLY CHAUFFEURS SPEED GUILTY

Referring to the large number of automobilists who appeared before him in the Malden District Court, Judge Bruce stated that the man at the wheel of the car is the man who violates the speed law, and he instructed the park police officers to bring the man operating the car only before him in the future. There were seven violators of the speed limit before the court, and each of them was fined $10.

RACERS HERE FOR SONDERKLASSE TRIAL

The 37-foot yacht Jopette, owned by Commodore W. H. Childs of the Beausbarat Yacht Club, is in the harbor on way to Marblehead, where she will compete in the trials in which the American defender of the Sonderklasse cup, presented by the German Emperor, will be selected. The Jopette is 37 feet over all, with a load water line length of twenty feet seven feet beam and a draught of five feet. In appearance she is very speedy.

No. 9 officially declared out of race

BRIGHTON BEACH RACE TRACK, N. Y., July 31.—During the progress of the auto race here to-day practically all of the drivers complained of the condition of the track, and predicted some serious accident.

Early in the day, while racing around the course at a sixty-mile-an-hour pace, J. B. Marquis, one of the favorites in the twenty-four-hour race, had a narrow escape from death, when his big machine threw a tire at "death curve," leaped high in the air and, turning a complete somersault, landed upside down.

Marquis was hurled to the track with terrific force, and it was feared that he had been killed. Many of the 13,000 enthusiasts who thronged the course at the time witnessed the accident and there was wild excitement. Several women fainted, and the police had the greatest difficulty in restoring order.

A track official raced around to the spot and found Marquis lying on the soft turf, unconscious. He was hurried to the Emergency Hospital tent, directly opposite the grand stand, and there Drs. Smith and Prentiss of the Flower Hospital and Miss Heatherington, a nurse from the Jamaica Hospital, immediately took the wounded man in hand.

The pretty nurse deftly cut away the injured man's clothes from his right shoulder, while the physicians attended to ugly gashes in Marquis's head.

After regaining consciousness, the injured driver was taken to a tent and later to his home.

Another Close Call.

Another bit of excitement was the hairbreadth escape from death of Grosse, driving No. 5 machine, and his mechanic Cole, who, when rounding the right turn from the home stretch, felt the steering wheel bend, and before Grosse could straighten the machine, it made a bee line for a cluster of trees.

It looked like certain death, and the spectators arose and yelled frantically. Following the disabled car were De Palma and Robertson, the two favorites, neck and neck as they reached the curve just a second behind Grosse's car. De Palma made a wide sweep inside, and Robertson kept to the centre. Grosse stopped his machine a few feet away from the trunk of a tree.

Robertson has a good lead over De Palma, owing to crank shaft trouble developed by De Palma's car. It was pathetic to watch De Palma, with tears streaming down his grease- and dust-begrimed face, pleading with his mechanics to hurry repairs. De Palma thus lost an hour and twenty minutes, giving Robertson the lead.

All Have Inflamed Eyes.

Many of the drivers and mechanics were greatly handicapped by inflamed eyes, and had to be treated by the physicians. Some of the drivers' wrists were swollen to twice their natural size, caused, they say, by the uneven track, and the deep ruts at the turns.

As the day advanced, the sun dried the track and the racing machines kicked up thick clouds of dust obscuring the drivers and machines from view and settling on the spectators. The driving of De Palma and Robertson held the attention of the multitude right along and as they rounded the dangerous curve in proximity to each other, obscured from view by the dust, they held the onlookers breathless.

All eyes were glued on the right curve, as the ruts became more dangerous. The machines swayed from side to side and looked as if they would spill the occupants.

Number 9 car was officially withdrawn from the race the reason being given that the machine which had special tube made for the wheel was unable to stand the heavy and bumpy track the continual jolting bending the tube.

Track Is Dangerous.

The deep furrows and heavy dust compelled the drivers to slacken their fast pace, and consequently they fell far below the record. Robertson led at the sixteenth hour, his score being 765 miles, which is only forty-five miles below his previous record of 810 miles, made at Brighton Beach last October.

Robertson made a strenuous kick with the judges as to the condition of the track, but was overruled in so doing the race for at least an hour so that the track could be repaired. Robertson said: "It is the poorest track I have ever driven on, and it is a wonder that serious accidents have not occurred. Now it is up to you fellows."

SHOT 4 TIMES IN FEUD FIGHT

NEW BEDFORD, July 31.—Thomas Rock, a well-known social figure in this city, shot Patrick Joyce, a tenant in the house owned by Rock's mother, four times with a 32-calibre revolver to-day, three of the shots taking effect.

Immediately after the shooting Rock went home, wrote a letter to the police and was on his way to surrender himself when he was arrested by Patrolman Raymond and Lieutenant Fay. The police say the shooting is the result of an enmity of two years' standing. Rock had threatened to shoot Joyce on the Fourth of July, when Joyce, it is said, called him a vile name.

Joyce is a former saloon keeper. His place now is the front of the rear of Rock's house at No. 745 River street. Rock and his mother live up stairs. Rock and Joyce met in the yard and Rock started shooting. Joyce ran and Rock followed, firing as he ran. One bullet struck the fleeing man's arm, the second lodged beneath the shoulder blade and the third just above the shoulder blade.

The police believe that Rock's mind has become unbalanced as the result of the long existing feud between the two. They have learned that Rock prepared for the shooting two weeks ago. At that time he sent to Chicago for the revolver and cartridges. They think that politics increased the enmity between the two men, for in the recent campaign Rock was a worker for the no-license forces.

SUFFRAGISTS TO TOUR STATE

A flying squadron of Suffragists will open up a campaign throughout the State on Monday, when they will start on a four weeks' tour, going from town to town by trolley, and bearing all their banners, buttons and other insignia. The campaign will begin at Clinton and will end in Plymouth.

The affair is in charge of the Votes for Women Committee, of which Mrs. L. E. Fitzgerald, secretary of the Equal Suffrage Association, is treasurer, and who is the leader in this trip. With her the first two weeks will be Miss Edith Haynes, Mrs. Mary K. O'Sullivan, Miss A. P. McClure, a Radcliffe girl, and Mrs. Hartley Dennett. Other speakers will be announced later.

After leaving Clinton the Suffragists will go to Fitchburg and Leominster, then to Gardner, Winchendon and Athol, and after that to the western part of the State, coming back by way of Worcester and through the southern part to Plymouth.

100 LEADERS IN BARCELONA ARE SHOT TO DEATH

MADRID, July 31.—One hundred leaders in the Barcelonia riots, convicted by courtmartial as incendiaries and inciters of riot, were shot to-day after summary conviction. They were lined up against a stone wall and executed by a company of troops.

That the Barcelona revolt is the most serious since the Paris commune in the bloody days of the French Revolution is the admission to-day of the Madrid organ of the Jesuits in the first official interview on the Spanish rebellion. The minister declares that the rioters are now effectually suppressed.

PRETENDER HAS RAISED STANDARD; READY TO STRIKE

LISBON, July 31.—The standard of Don Jaime, the Spanish pretender, whose head has worked the marvel of a rebellion against the Spanish King, has been raised in Bordage, France, and Carlists are flocking there from every quarter. The Carlists declare that Spain will be invaded and have sworn to set their leader upon the throne of Spain. More than 2,000 refugees are gathered there.

In Barcelona 80,000 workmen, aroused to frenzy by the slaughter of their women and children by the Spanish troops, are awaiting word from Lerroux, the expelled Republican deputy, whose single command would arouse a flame of rebellion which would sweep Spain like a tidal wave. Altogether in the Catalonia district 100,000 men are ready to renew their warfare against the government.

The government fears a renewal of hostilities in the Barcelona district because the troops heretofore have shown a great reluctance to shoot down the rioting strikers. The government fears that the sol-

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, July 1.—"Get an even break, you Red Sox" was the plea of the fans, as they poured into the Taylor Park this afternoon to witness the last game of the series between the Red Sox and Browns from St. Louis.

The McAleer boys, have sprung a couple of surprises on the local warriors and captured two of the contests while the Lake tribe had won only one. This didn't make it look very promising for the Red Sox against the Tigers next week, but Manager Lake figures that the long overdue winning spell will strike his team about the same time the Tigers arrive and that he will clean up.

A great part of the population, which didn't spend the half day off at the various beaches, journeyed to the Back Bay Park to see to-day's game. The bleacher seats were pretty warm affairs, but there was a good breeze blowing.

The bugs were sore at the Red Sox for not getting both of yesterday's games and wanted them to step up and make McAleer's men and send them away from here with a good beating.

DYNAMITE BRINGS UP A BOY'S BODY

The body of Joseph Walsh, eight years old, of No. 22 Freeman street, Dorchester, who was drowned after falling from the railroad trestle bridge running from Savin Hill to Freeport street, was found to-day by Thomas Lilley, who has been searching for the missing child, floating in the water back of the Billings & Clapp Chemical Company's factory. It is thought that the dynamite blasting yesterday, which was done for the purpose, brought the body to the surface.

EIGHT HURT IN TROLLEY CRASH

MILLBURY, July 31.—Two trolley cars were wrecked in a head-on collision on the Worcester and Blackstone Valley street railway and eight people were injured, four of them severely. The accident occurred at a curve two miles from Millbury Centre, and was due, it is said, to the fact that the running schedule of the cars was somewhat out of the ordinary, both being "off time."

NATIONAL LEAGUE GROUNDS, St. Louis, July 31.—Opening their last visit of the day before the Boston Nationals the Cardinals this afternoon are getting their teeth. It was the second game of the series and the local fans lined up by the great finish of Bresnahan's men in the first game came to the park in large numbers to see, if such a thing was possible, a repetition of the doings.

Manager Harry Smith was firmly convinced that his team was a better one than the club that Bresnahan leads and he told his boys that there was nothing to it if they would only keep on the jump all the time. This the boys promised to do.

OVER 1,250 SUITS AGAINST THE CITY

The city of Boston was on the first day of the present municipal court year facing 1,264 law suits, according to the annual report of Corporation Counsel Babson, just submitted to Mayor Hibbard.

In the report Mr. Babson states that the work of the Law Department of the city has substantially doubled in ten years.

Mr. Babson states that the number of legislative matters that demanded the attention of his department last year was double the number of those in 1899.

The report shows that the city pays 29 salaries in the Law Department $45,084.

HOLYOKE WOMAN DROWNED AT CAMP

DENTER, July 31.—Word was received here of the drowning of Mrs. Bertha Flynt, wife of Guy B. Flynt, of Holyoke, Mass., at Head Pond near Jackman, where Mr. and Mrs. Flynt went for a week's outing.

They passed through here the first of the week enroute for camp, leaving their eight-year old son with Mrs. Flynt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barker of Gardiner. No particulars of the drowning were given in the telegram received here.

liers will break out in sheer mutiny and commander of them may even join the forces of the rioters. Transports are carrying soldiers out of Spain and into Morocco as rapidly as they can be mobilized and the fear is now growing in official circles that there will soon be insufficient troops left to quell a general uprising.

The consular agent at Palmas in his report to-day says that Leroux is supposed to be at Bordeaux. The Spanish government is attempting to have him prisoned and every port is being watched by government agents to prevent his leaving the country.

At Madrid King Alfonso is trying to placate his people. Despite the warnings of his Prime Minister, he dashes in walking in the streets. The people bowl in derision at his presence, but he affects not to notice it. Cabinet meetings are held continuously in the Spanish capital, and in vain has Premier Maura sought to restrain and allow a military cabinet to put down the trouble with the iron hand of soldiery and despotism. The King received a wounded officer from Melilla and heard from first hand the true story of conditions in Morocco. He was very grave during the recital and plied the officer with questions.

Barcelona is stunned to-day from the debauchery of blood. Dozens of priests and nuns were slain in the most ruthless manner. Women and girls died in the incendiaries to fire the monasteries and nunneries.

Many of the nuns and priests died at the altar clasping the cross and praying for mercy.

"Down with the church," screamed the mob, and stoned the nuns when they appeared at the windows of the convent. When they tried to escape, the rioters drove them back with curses into the burning buildings. Whistling and singing the "Marseillaise," the rioting workmen surged through the streets. Some of them bore poles with human heads and trunks impaled thereon. Some of the troops also fatuly refused to fire on the revolutionists, while the loyal soldiers mowed them down with a raking fire from their machine guns.

SPANISH, IN TRAP, FIGHT NEW ATTACKS BY MOORISH ARMY

LISBON, July 31.—Reported to be by a force of Moors outnumbering them more than five to one, the Spanish army at Melilla is to-day battling desperately under a new attack. Again and again the tribesmen swept down from the hills, picking off the Europeans as they rode like remnants. Each attack is more terrific than the last, and it is only a question of hours till Melilla must fall, unless 50,000 troops are rushed from Spain.

That is the news contained in the dispatches which are coming from the north coast of Africa.

The flame of race hatred has again swept through Morocco and the entire country is ready to join in the holy war. It is expected that within a few days 200,000 or more tribesmen will be in the field.

Fully one-third that many have already taken arms against the Spanish and have concentrated about Melilla or are on their way there. The other settlements of Spain along the African coast are in danger, and attacks are already expected. Even France fears an attack in her territory.

Against this force there is but the handful of soldiers in the besieged town which has been on the defensive for days—since the disastrous expedition which led to the death of General Pinto and the declaration of his force.

Spanish Force Decimated.

The Spanish dead and injured, according to trustworthy advices, already number between 4,000 and 5,000. The original force consisted of only 8,000 men.

Rebellion was rife among the troops when the trouble started. In all the garrison there were but a few loyalist companies. But there is no tinge of insubordination or treachery now. The note really is that they are not fighting for Spain, but for their lives. There is no way of escape for them unless adequate help arrives immediately.

Before them lie the mountain ranges of Northern Africa, sacrificing the town. Behind them is the sea. There are not enough vessels at hand to transport them in safety, even should they mutiny and seize all available ships.

Stretching in a thin line four miles long is the Spanish force, drawn up outside the walls of Melilla. Before them are the Moors, entrenched on Mt. Gurugu, upon they hold their position valiantly in spite of heavy losses from artillery fire. The gunners of the cruiser Numancia have fulfilled their duty.

There is no peace before Melilla. Down from the mountain come the Moors, projectiles of flesh and blood, at first only at a terrific clip the thunder of their charge quickened. Now there is a running staccato fire from their long rifles. They ride with the fatal recklessness of cowboys; they fire with the deadliness of the Boer sharp shooters; they fight with the cunning of red Indians and the daring and resolution of fanatics.

They are fighting for the Crescent, and he who dies in that cause is assured eternal happiness.

MADRID UPRISING FEARED; TROOPS DESERTING KING

LONDON, July 31.—Dangerous unrest among the Spanish troops in the Madrid garrison, with the alarming prospect of a mutiny of soldiers is reported from the Spanish capital to-day. The daily executions of rebellious soldiers have aroused their comrades.

There is every possibility of an uprising in Madrid, which may drench the city in blood and cause slaughter greater than in the Barcelona district.

The government, taxed beyond its pacifying the workmen in the capital, has issued orders of younger men from whole families of Spain who have volunteered to join the ranks and fight in the colonies. This had little effect. King Alfonso has ordered troops all over the city. There are artillery camps and troopers parade the streets. Desertions from the royal army are numerous.

INSURRECTION SUBDUED, BUT---

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Electrical Invention to Cripple Warships.

LONDON—It is declared here that the reason the American Government remains apparently so little concerned about the advances in aerial navigation made by the foreign experimenters is that an officer of the American army stationed at Fort Omaha has worked out an electric invention which is likely to paralyze all the other existing or proposed engines of war. The invention, he is reported as saying, is to be exclusively the property of the United States Government, and up to the present the essential details have been carefully guarded. The machine is said to project through the air in a column of electric energy of almost any desired strength at any given object for a distance of many hundred yards. Such an electric column would queer every mechanism on a warship, stop the engines, annul the steering gear, kill the dynamo apparatus and make the guns unworkable. It would slay hundreds of men by the shock alone and might even explode the magazines.

Beats Off Five Robbers.

BARMEN, Rhenish Prussia—James L. Houghtaling of Chicago, while on his way here, was set upon by five Italian robbers near the Swiss frontier. He beat off five of the robbers with his fists, sending one to the hospital for an indefinite period, and arrested two others. Mr. Houghtaling is an old-time Yale University baseball player.

Calls on Mrs. Roosevelt.

PORTO MAURIZO, Italy—The Italian Ambassador to the United States and the Baroness Mayor des Planches called on Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt at the villa Pertusio, the home of Miss Carew. Miss Ethel and Archie Roosevelt will accompany the Ambassador and his wife on a trip to Piedmont and the Italian Alps.

Texas City in Mexico?

MEXICO CITY—The Mexican State Department has unearthed an old map which proves to show that the city of El Paso, in Texas is really in Mexican territory. Senor Puga, who is now in Washington, will take up the matter with Anson Mills of the International Boundary Commission.

More Suffragettes in Jail.

LONDON—Seven of the militant suffragettes who were arrested last night for violently disturbing Minister Lloyd George during his speech in the East End were sentenced to-day to serve prison terms varying from fourteen days to two months.

Latham Asks Passenger.

CALAIS—Hubert Latham, the aviator, who has made two unsuccessful attempts to cross the English Channel in his aeroplane, has now determined to attempt to win the Deutsch prize of $5,000 for the first aeroplanist to cross the channel with a passenger.

Bringing Fortner Home.

PARIS—Marion Dwight Fortner, who is charged with misappropriation of funds at Clayton, Mo., and who has been extradited, will sail for New York on the steamer St. Paul. He is accompanied by a detective.

ZEPPELIN ENDS 230-MILE TRIP AT FRANKFORT

FRANKFORT, Germany, July 31.—A tremendous ovation greeted Count Zeppelin and his seven companions to-day when they alighted from the great dirigible balloon in which they had traveled from Friedrichshafen, a distance of more than 220 miles, in eleven hours. The patriotism of the entire expectant crowds was stilled to the highest pitch when the world's biggest airship was first discerned standing out, a tiny black speck against the distant sky line, but rapidly assuming size and shape as its mighty propellers swept it swiftly on.

When the occupants finally became visible the enthusiasm of the thousands of onlookers, most of whom had never before seen a dirigible in description, broke all bounds, and their frantic cheers mingled with the blasts of the city's whistles and the ringing of the bells in a tumult that brought the huts from the bonds of all the occupants of the balloon compartment, except that of the grizzled Count himself, is sweeping wave of recognition.

Count Greets Crowd.

Count Zeppelin sat at his post directing the movements of the great craft, and until it had alighted with the apparent ease and grace of a monster bird, he had attention for nothing but the sensitive levers with which he controlled its every movement. When it was safely anchored to earth, however, he waved over the ordinarily stern, military face, and waving his hands to the tumultuous cheering crowds, he cried out:

"Well, here we are my friends, all safe and sound."

The first noisily enthusiastic greetings over, the Count made brief light of his trip, saying that they had encountered no more formidable obstacles than contrary winds, but that these had been sufficiently strong to almost halt them at times, and that under more favorable conditions they would have arrived much earlier.

"As Easy as an Auto."

"However, all in all, it was a fairly successful trip," he declared, "and helps to show that journeys in the air are now as feasible as they are on the earth."

His companions were much more enthusiastic over the trip, declaring that it had gone so smoothly that they were at no time uncomfortable, even when the wind was at its worst. All declared that Count Zeppelin control of his giant craft was more perfect than that of any chauffeur they had ever seen over his automobile.

WRIGHTS WIN A BONUS OF $5,000 BY GREAT FLIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 31. — Orville Wright made official time in the ten-mile flight from Fort Meyer to Alexandria, Va., and back, according to the announcement made by the official board of awards at noon today, was 42.36 miles per hour, giving the Wrights a bonus of $5,000 in addition to the contract price of $25,000.

Orville Wright leave for Dayton, O., this afternoon or to-morrow morning. They will take a week's rest and then return to Washington, according to a statement made by General Allen, chief signal officer. When they return they will remain until lieutenants Lahm and Foulois are proficient in the use of the aeroplane.

General Allen to-day annulled the contract of A. M. Herring of New York, who has failed to deliver his aeroplane. Herring's time limit of the time set to deliver his machine expired to-day. He informed Secretary Wright that he could not deliver an aeroplane until September 1.

STEAMER AND SHIP IN CRASH OFF BEVERLY

BEVERLY, July 31.—What came near being a serious accident with loss of life occurred last evening off Cape Cod when the steamer Ligonier collided with the fishing schooner Nesconset, it was learned to-day, when the crippled schooner was towed to this port. Captain Cates of the Ligonier declared that the impact was due to a fog and contended that it was the thickest he ever experienced.

The Nesconset was on the fishing grounds, but was homeward bound at the time. She was not making much headway in a light breeze. The Ligonier, with a large tow, was coming from Texas to this city, loaded with oil. She was proceeding slowly through the fog, and the lookout declared that he could not see more than a few yards ahead of the bow.

Without warning the steamer came upon the fishing schooner. Her steel bow struck the bow of the schooner at the bowsprit, cut off the huge bur as cleanly as though with a knife, and the bowsprit carried away with it the fore headsail and the fore topmast, leaving the schooner helpless.

Those on the crew who were sleeping were knocked out of their berths, the watch on deck were knocked down and several of them were severely bruised. The lookout in fact, was hurled into the water, but swam back to his own boat.

The splintering of the bow timber caused a leak and it was necessary to man the pumps. Captain Cates stopped his steamer and realizing the dangerous condition of the fishermen took her in tow and brought her to the entrance of Beverly harbor, where a tug picked her up and took her to Gloucester. The steamer was not injured.

How He Got Rid of Consumption

Remarkable Rescue of Prominent Indians Man a Matter of Life-and-Death Interest to All Throat and Lung Sufferers.

For Benefit of American Readers, He Tells How He Cured Himself at Home—Costs Nothing to Try.

"I think I owe it to all sufferers of lung and throat trouble and consumption to tell them some mighty good news, a way to cure themselves right at home with little trouble," said E. S. Brink, of Angola, Ind., yesterday, as he passed through.

"Coming from me, probably, some people might doubt that, but let me tell you," he said as his 66-year-old face flushed with a resurrected, youthful smile, "over two years ago I was a wasted-up wreck, a consumptive at 65. They said I positively passed me up. Every day I would cough up about a pint. I had chills and fever every afternoon. I could hardly eat, even the plainest food, coughed nearly all night, and was down to 137 pounds when I left on the cars. Well, you see me now. I weigh 168 pounds, frisky as a boy at 66, can do a big day's work, and eat like a cormorant.

"Now I am not trying to boost anybody, but I must give credit to whom credit is due. Dr. J. Lawrence Hill, 375 Hill Building, Jackson, Mich., the well known lung specialist of America and probably one of the only specialists living on me. That was two years ago. I have just had my lungs examined again and there is no trace of consumption or any danger of coming back. Dr. Hill makes a specialty of treating throat and lung sufferers at his home office and by the means of visiting his office personally. That's the way he cured me, and I know of many others who had one foot in the grave almost brought back to life by what he calls his Rational Treatment. It certainly is a wonder.

"I would say every reader of your paper who has weak lungs, catarrh of the bronchial tubes or catarrh in any form, chronic bronchial asthma, chronic hacking cough, loss of flesh, night sweats, hemorrhages, soreness or pain in the chest or under the shoulder blade or any other deadly symptom of consumption, to send to Dr. Hill for his trial package. This treatment checks at once further progress of the disease, develops wonderful cell tissues and brings on new resisting power, appetite, flesh and good health." Fill out the coupon below and mail to-day.

Trial Treatment Package Coupon

Dr. J. Lawrence Hill,
375 Hill Building, Jackson, Mich.

I am suffering from throat and lung trouble and consumption. Send your lungs trial package in plain, sealed wrapper, that I may try it myself and by myself if I will do what you claim it will, examine free. It costs me nothing to try and I am not ordering from you. I am only sending for the trial package out of idle curiosity.

DIDN'T RAISE HAT; WOMAN HIT LAWYER

WORCESTER, July 31.—Alleging that his failure to tip his hat in greeting led to a wrangle, Mrs. Fred H. Cook of Allerton, on the Shrewsbury town line, struck Attorney A. Reed, a lawyer, struck her and knocked her down.

Mrs. Cook said that she met Reed on Main street and that he insisted upon stopping and talking to her, although she did not want him to.

Reed denied the blow. He said that Mrs. Cook struck him first and that he pushed her with a book.

"He did not tip his hat and say 'How do you do, Florence?' when he walked up to me," Mrs. Cook swore.

"I did tip my hat and say 'How do you do, Florence?' deposed the lawyer. "Then she refused to talk to me."

Judge Fox found that they had walked side by side for some distance and were engaged in a spirited row in regard to letters written by Reed to Mrs. Cook's brother.

The Judge discharged Reed on the ground that the assault was committed in self defense.

OPERA SINGERS ON WAY TO BOSTON

Florencio Constantino, who will appear at the new Boston Opera House, when the latter is opened, will soon leave Buenos Ayres for Europe, arriving in Boston in this country. Reports of his work in the southern section of the western hemisphere is that he is as perfect in voice and health as it is humanely possible for one to be. Henry Russell, the director of the Boston Opera House, expects to have the singer in his city by the latter part of next month.

George Baklanoff, a Russian baryton who will also appear at the new opera house, will make his American debut as Barnaba in "La Gioconda," which will probably be the opening performance at the new house.

MASKED MEN SECURE $200 BY HOLDUP

NEW BEDFORD, July 31.—The police of this city and of Taunton, Fall River and Middleboro are to-day searching for three holdup men who, with masks to hide their faces, forced Handel & Co. to open the safe at their store at East Freetown.

It is not believed that the men can escape, because the alarm was given so soon that it was possible to cover every possible outlet. The men fled toward this city it is thought that they are here now.

Mr. Washburn keeps the general store in East Freetown, which is the only store in the village about seven miles northwest of here. He was preparing to close the store and had just put the money in the safe, when a young man of about twenty-two, dressed in a light suit, came in and walking up to the candy counter, asked for a pound of chocolates.

Having weighed the candy and boxed it, Washburn turned to give it to the customer and found himself looking into the muzzle of a revolver in the hands of another man standing in the middle of the store. Before he could recover from his astonishment, Washburn discovered a third man standing in the doorway of the store, swinging a revolver. Both these men were masked. The one in the store was six feet tall, and wore a black suit. The man who came for the candy did not move or speak.

The six-footer acted as spokesman. "We want all your money and we want it quick," was his command to Washburn. The latter hesitated and the holdup man repeated his demand, accompanying it by a threat to shoot. Then Washburn turned to the safe and taking out the cash box, emptied it on the counter, and the man who came for the candy took the money, $200 in bills and silver, and walked out.

Both the armed men ordered Washburn not to stir until they were out.

SAYS GOVERNMENT OWES HIM FORTUNE

BROCKTON, July 31.—George N. Atwood of No. 14 Oakland street expects soon to forsake the simple life and become a man of wealth, having discovered that the government owes him thousands of dollars under the French spoliation act. His ancestors having had numerous ships destroyed during the troublous years from 1804 to 1812. Mr. Atwood has looked up his claim and will leave in a few days for Washington, where he expects to get government officials to hand him over a check for a vast sum.

MYSTERY GIRL CONFESSES TO 11 FORGERIES

NEW YORK, July 31.—Grace Maidhof, the mysterious young woman held in the West Fifty-fourth street prison as the result of numerous complaints charging her with forgery, has confessed that she passed at least eleven worthless checks in Manhattan, and implicated John H. Freese, the lawyer who first came to her rescue, and Philip H. S. Whitney, a deputy inspector of elections, who declared he had accompanied President Taft on Panama on his private secretary.

A strange feature of the affair is that despite the fact the girl betrayed Whitney and caused his arrest, she asked Magistrate Seibert in the West Side police court, when the trio were arraigned, if he would marry them. He declined on the ground that the girl had signed a married name and feared further complications. He then held the couple in $2,500 each and the lawyer in $3,000, telling the girl that she might have the minister who would perform the ceremony in jail.

Miss Maidhof, a Harvard graduate, was sent to a cell, while Whitney and the Maidhof girl were taken to the District Attorney's office, where they signed a joint confession.

They acknowledged having passed seven worthless checks. Eight of these, they said, were drawn by Freese, while Whitney drew four. The girl passed them in the West Side stores and at Broadway hotels.

Whitney was exceedingly nervous and said that he wanted to enter on his prison term as quickly as possible.

"Don't be foolish," interrupted the woman, sharply. "We might not go to prison at all. This whole thing is up to Freese."

Freese, in his cell, declared that he had been the victim of a band of blackmailers.

GUARD CZAR CLOSELY ON FRENCH VISIT

CHERBOURG, France, July 31.—Announced by the roar of artillery and the flying of French and Russian flags, the royal convoy of Russian warships escorting the imperial yacht Standart upon which are the Czar and Czarina of Russia, steamed into the harbor to-day.

Czar Nicholas comes from German waters and, after his visit with President Falliores of France, will visit King Edward in England.

President Falliores, accompanied by Foreign Minister Pichon, Admiral Boue de la Peyrere, Minister of Marine; General Drum, Minister of War, and a large retinue arrived early.

Cherbourg swarms to-day with secret agents and police to protect the Russian autocrat. The authorities, alarmed by the socialistic demonstrations, are taking extraordinary precautions. All suspected persons are being watched and police boats patrol the harbor.

Hundreds of Russian police officials are here from Kiel and the city is practically under martial law. More than fifty torpedo boats and destroyers are in the harbor to keep every vessel under scrutiny.

The entire French fleet is massed off the harbor mouth. The program includes an exchange of visits, with lunches and dinners aboard the French battleship Verite and the Standart.

ARRESTED AS SIGEL SLAYER

NEW YORK, July 31.—Chung Sing, the companion of Leon Ling, slayer of Elsie Sigel, the granddaughter of General Franz Sigel, who has been held in the House of Detention as a material witness ever since the murder was committed, was to-day served with a warrant charging him with murder in the first degree, and was removed to the Tombs Prison.

The charge of murder followed an attempt to get his liberty on habeas corpus proceedings and was preceded by the giving out of a confession which is now in the hands of the District Attorney.

The most important of these affidavits is that made by Quan Yick Nee, an interpreter, who declares that a confession by Chung that he had aided in hiding the body of the unfortunate girl yesterday and had with another Chinaman now being sought by the police helped Leon Ling to pack the body in the trunk after the murder had been committed.

"On June 28," says Quen Yick Nan in his affidavit, "Chung Sing told me that he and another Chinaman helped to put the body of Elsie Sigel in the trunk in Ling's room."

WOULD RID REVERE OF CORRUPTION

In an effort to rid the town of corruption and graft of the notorious manipulation of the law, the Revere Good Government Association, in an appeal to citizens, calls upon all who desire to have the "liquor fiend" and gambling houses and other places of bad repute closed, to join in the movement to have a different type of men at the head of the town government. The statement is issued by the executive committee which is composed of the Rev. Nelson S. Burbank, Clarence E. Whitney, Dr. Frank Bacon, Ralph T. Kimball and William J. Stanton.

MANY FLAGSHIPS AT NAVY YARD

Within a few days, when the armored cruiser New York will have reached Boston from the Mediterranean, there will be five war flagships in the harbor, the Constitution of the War of 1812, the Wabash and the Hartford of the Civil War, and the Olympia and the New York of the Spanish War. The Olympia, the Chicago and the Hartford brought to the navy yard $50 cadet midshipmen from the naval academy at Annapolis. They will be given instruction in the various sheds at the yard before going to sea again for a practice cruise.

The steamer was not injured.

BOSTON STROLLER KILLED IN MAINE

RICHMOND, Me., July 31.—Angelo Gacchione, one of a band of strolling musicians, was killed by a train on the Maine Central railroad station, and the four other members of the band are detained at the police station here, pending a coroner's investigation. A quarrel over the division of the proceeds of the day's street concerts is said to have preceded the shooting. Gacchione was a son of Rosario Gacchione of 440 Hanover street, Boston. For some time he and four companions, ranging in age from nine to seventeen years, had been traveling through Maine giving street performances in various towns.

GAS COMPANY HERO IS GIVEN REWARD

In recognition of heroic work in rescuing several men from suffocation by sewer gas in the Cambridge subway during the Cambridge subway, the Cambridge Gaslight Company has presented $25 to its employe Eugene Burke.

Mr. O'Brien went into the pit where the men were found unconscious and attached ropes to their bodies, and no doubt was instrumental in saving four lives. The fifth man, John Kelley of Jamaica Plain, although rescued, died two days afterward.

SECOND GIRL BURGLAR IS GIVEN SENTENCE

Twenty-year-old Marian F. Kelley plead-d guilty to a charge of burglary to-day in the Juvenile Court, Cambridge, before Judge Almy. She was sentenced to the Lancaster school for girls, but the decree of the court is not to go into effect until October. She admitted making her way into a flat at No. 230 Elm street, in the same house in which her mother lives. She also admitted that she stole a watch and some money from No. 200 Elm street.

ALDED HOLD-UP VICTIM DIES

William Hanniford, the prosperous South Weymouth farmer, who was found last Wednesday morning on a lonely road with an 100 yards of his home, lying in a pool of blood with his skull crushed in, died at the Grace Hospital in this city early to-day without regaining consciousness.

William Cunant, a former employe of Hanniford farm, who discovered the body, was arrested by the Quincy police and held for a hearing, but will probably be set free by the death of Mr. Hanniford he will now be arraigned on a more serious charge.

O'MEARA HAS FIRST VACATION IN YEARS

Police Commissioner O'Meara left to-day for a ten months' vacation, the first he has had since he took office three years ago. With his family he has gone to a quiet spot in New Hampshire, known only to a few of the highest officials in Washington as the writer's absolute rest. During his absence Superintendent Pierce will have charge of the department, assisted by Deputy Superintendent Cain. Deputy Warren is motoring through Canada.

TO-DAY IS JUST ABOUT PERFECT

In striking contrast to the sweltering heat of yesterday, Boston folk to-day enjoyed a nearly if not quite ideal day. Yesterday, until late in the afternoon, the mercury hung unceasingly above the 90 mark, while to-day it hovered in the vicinity of 75, a blessing to the thousands who enjoy their out-holiday.

The weather coolness is the fulfillment of the Weather Man's promise. He is still good and promises that it will be fair for to-morrow and cooler. Yesterday's storm came a few hours ahead of the forecaster's schedule time. Although Boston got but a part of the downpour, the suburbs were drenched.

LINER CRETIC ARRIVES, AFTER A FIRE PANIC IN STEERAGE OFF AZORES

With the arrival to-day of the White Star liner Cretic from the Mediterranean and Azores with the heaviest passenger list of the season, came the first news of a fire panic among the liner's steerage passengers, when the Cretic was in deep water fifty miles from the Azores.

The Cretic brought 66 saloon passengers, 200 second cabin and 1,744 steerage, in addition to her 350 officers and crew.

The saloon list contained a number of distinguished names. Among them was H. Percy Maxim, son of Sir Hiram Maxim and inventor of the famous Maxim gun silencer. Another saloon passenger was Fred A. Russell Whitney, the Boston art collector, who predicted that, now that the tariff on art works is to be removed, millions of dollars worth of art objects will be imported which have been collected and stored abroad, waiting for the tariff bars to be lowered. The J. Pierpont Morgan collection in London is a notable example of this.

A prominent ecclesiastical arrival on the Cretic was Signor Aristide Leonori, chamberlain to Pope Pius X., who brought cheering news of the Pope's health.

Mattresses Catch Fire.

The Cretic left Genoa, Italy, July 14, and left Naples three days later. She arrived at the Azores last Monday morning, took on 300 more steerage passengers, and resumed her westward voyage.

Late last Monday afternoon, when the Cretic was fifty miles this side of the Azores, an electric fan in the steerage blew out a fuse, setting fire to two mattresses.

There was panic in the crowded steerage in a minute. Immigrants swarmed up on deck, pale of face and shrieking "Fire!" In every known Italian and Portuguese dialect, with a little Greek and a smattering of Oriental ejaculations thrown in. The up-rush from the steerage frightened the immigrants already on deck and the whole steerage quarters was ready to do anything.

Two steerage stewards had put out the mattress fire in a second. But it took the officers and crew an hour to quell the frightened immigrants. Women wept and screamed and prayed and the men called on the saints. There was unusually fervent appeals all through the Cretic steerage that night for safety the rest of the voyage.

The saloon and second cabin passengers did not know there was a fire, though they became aware, of course, that the whole steerage was agitated.

Visited Crowned Heads.

H. Percy Maxim returned to Boston with his wife and sister, Miss Florence Maxim, after making an extensive tour through Europe, where he has been trying out the silencers before the crowned heads. Mr. Maxim declared that he has returned to this country for the purpose of perfecting his silencer for high-powered guns, and that he will carry on the work in his Hyde Park home.

"I have tried my silencer in England and in many of the European countries with great success," he said. "My silencers have met with universal appreciation. During my trip we exhibited the gun to the crowned heads and government officers of Europe. The trip was wonderfully successful and most pleasant."

Fred A. Russell Whitney, the Boston art collector and connoisseur, who has spent twenty-five years in collecting works of art which are now stored in Munich was told of the removal of the tariff on works of art when the Cretic passed quarantine.

Delighted at Good News.

"Oh, I am delighted to hear the good news," said he. "Now that the government has done its share to enrich the art museums of this country there will be millions of dollars worth of art treasures brought into the country.

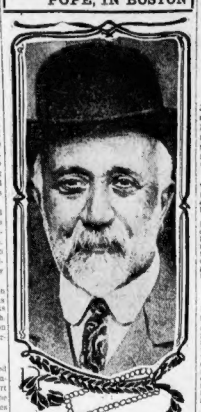
"I know that J. Pierpont Morgan's collection, worth millions, which is now in London, will be brought here. I have spent twenty-five years in collecting magnificent pictures and works of art. They are now stored in Munich, and I shall bring them to Boston as soon as I can arrange to do so.

"The collection, which I shall eventually give to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, includes three priceless pictures. They are 'St. Stephens,' by Lorrenzo Lotto; 'Ecce Homo,' which I consider is the best head of Christ in Europe, by Reni Guido, and 'Cardinal Medicis,' by Sostermus."

Signor Aristide Leonori, chamberlain to Pope Pius X., and a noted Italian architect, said that when he left the Vatican Pope Pius was in good health, despite the rumors which have been current that for sometime the Pope has not been well. He will remain in America several weeks, and will spend a week or more with Archbishop O'Connell in Boston.

Edmund H. Garrett, a well known Boston artist, returned on the Cretic from an eight month's stay in the principal art centres of Italy. Mr. Garrett brought back 125 paintings, all water color, which he made during his absence.

SENOR LAONORI, CHAMBERLAIN TO POPE, IN BOSTON



BARON FORBADE SON'S WEDDING TO MISS MENN

CHICAGO, July 31.—For the first time the true facts concerning the romance of Miss Olga Menn, daughter of Dr. Rudolph Menn, of No. 15 Lincoln avenue, and Baron Oskar Rothschild, which terminated in the tragic death of the young nobleman, were to-day made known.

The woman who furnishes the information has just returned from abroad. She is a personal friend of the Rothschilds, and says frequent visits to their palaces, that was in Vienna when Baron Oskar vainly sought to secure the consent of Baron Albert.

"You may marry the girl, if you choose," Baron Albert is reported to have said, "but if you do you are no son of mine. I will announce you, and not one dollar of my money will you ever get."

Baron Albert followed this with a command that Baron Oskar proceed to Hamburg in company with two of his brothers and notify Mrs. Menn and her daughter, who were awaiting the outcome of the conference, that the engagement must be broken.

Baron Oskar, virtually a prisoner, left Vienna. His two brothers never left him for a moment, either during the trip or during his stay in Hamburg. They were present when he told Miss Menn of his shattered hopes, and without even the consolation of a final farewell they escorted him back to Vienna.

NO MEDAL FOR HIM.

Hjalmar Rudd, a deck hand on the customs cruiser Winnisimmet, who jumped overboard and rescued a drowning man under circumstances requiring a cool head and steady nerve, has decided that he does not care for a Government medal in recognition of the act. Lieutenant Boyd, commanding the Winnisimmet, asked Rudd's permission to recommend him for a medal, but Rudd said that he preferred that no action be taken on the rescue.

PILGRIMS OF OLD MARCH IN DUXBURY FETE

DUXBURY, July 31.—Myles Standish, John Alden, George Soule and other personages in that Pilgrim colony from Plymouth, which settled Duxbury in 1630, reappeared in this old town to-day in a monster historical pageant, which was the feature of an elaborate celebration of "Duxbury Day."

Literary exercises held in connection with the celebration included an address by former Governor John D. Long and an original poem by Roland Thomas, the Duxbury bard.

The town was a-flutter from daybreak. Its midmorning it was crowded with visitors. Summer residents from all along the South Shore were on hand to swell the summer population of Duxbury and to help the gallant year-round Duxburyites, many of them descendants of the original Pilgrims, celebrate the brave deeds of their forbears.

Pretty Girls in Pageant.

The fair Duxbury maid—they say none is fairer on the South Shore—was delightfully in evidence. In Pilgrim costume she appeared in the pageant scenes. In modern garb, the lighter of Summer linens and muslins and the most fetching hats, she waited on the refreshments tables and otherwise assisted in the latter-day end of the enterprise. And she had the Duxbury swain nearly distracted on account of her demure admiration for the gallant officers from Admiral Schroeder's fleet at Provincetown, who came over in the afternoon in all the glory of epaulets and brass buttons.

Yet modern Pilgrim maid have distinctly preferred a sombre Pilgrim sweetheart, but her twentieth century sister is by no means fully impartial to either military or civil uniforms.

Secretary Meyer of the navy loaned to Commodore William S. Moore of the Duxbury Yacht Club by former Commodore George P. Cushman, were affixed about in carriages and entertained at luncheon. To-night they will be guests at the Yacht Club.

The literary exercises began at 1 o'clock. Former Governor Long, as President of the Standish Monument Association, delivered the address of the day. In addition to Mr. Thomas's poem there were addresses by Congressman Moore, Elmer Curtis of Hingham and Dr. Myles Standish of Boston, direct descendant of the Pilgrim Standish.

More than one hundred Duxbury people took part in the pageant, which was composed of the following scenes: Village of Scrooby, England, where the Pilgrims held service before departing; May-day Festival in Scrooby; Town of Delftland, Holland, when the Pilgrims sailed for America; the Embarkation; Indian Home Life in America; the Landing of the Pilgrims, Pilgrims Going to Church, "Why Can't You Speak for Yourself, John?" the Treaty with Massasoit, the Return of Myles Standish, the Establishment of the Revolution, Duxbury's Rebuilding, Daughters of the Revolution, Landing of the French Cable, Flag Dance.

Dance by Children.

The dance of the children of all nations was given on the Town Hall, with forty children taking part.

The committees for the Duxbury day festivities:

General director of the historical pageant and chairman of the day—Miss Bradford.

Executive committee—J. Myles Standish (chairman), Commodore William S. Moore, William J. Wright, Horace H. Soule, Alfred Winsor, Miss Bradford.

AMERICAN COUNTESS AND ITALIAN HUSBAND ON VISIT IN BOSTON

Snapshot of the Countess Frasso, da ughter of Henry Siegel, taken to-day.

Count Carlo Dentice di Frasso, member of the Italian Parliament, representing the District of Ostuni, Southern Italy, and the Contessa, formerly Miss Georgine Wilde, daughter of Mrs. Henry Siegel, arrived on the White Star liner Cretic, and were met at quarantine early to-day by Mr. Henry Siegel and a representative of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

As the big vessel steamed up to its Charlestown wharf, the attention of the count was called to the points of interest along the shore, and he was particularly interested in the Great North End, containing as many of his countrymen, he said:

"I cannot describe the feelings that come over me when I enter the great ports of the United States. New York and Boston, coming from the quiet cities of Italy. The activity, rush of things, tremendous energy manifested, great efficiency of the American people, fill me with emotion and it is beautiful to see.

"I would like to have every young man in Italy spend at least two years in America during the period of his early education, for that alone would be an education that a youth could obtain nowhere else in the world and would be of immense benefit to our young nation, for," he added this almost in a whisper, "you know while Rome dates back into ancient history modern Italy is only about thirty years old."

The Count spoke feelingly of America's generosity during the great disaster in Messina and Reggio.

"It was beautiful, the way America sprang to Italy's assistance in the hour of our grief. All Italy was thrilled with the magnificent generosity of the American people."

At this moment the Cretic was passing the old monitor Tonopah, now in the harbor with cadets from Annapolis on board, and the discussion Mrs. Siegel said playfully:

"We have discovered a new kind of armor which Italian bullets cannot pierce." The Count laughed widely, responding:

"Italian bullets will never try to pierce them."

"God forbid," was the more serious echo from Mr. Siegel.

MEXICO AGAIN SHAKEN; DEATH LIST GROWS

CITY OF MEXICO, July 31.—Reports today from every quarter of the one thousand square miles of territory in southern Mexico, which was devastated by earthquakes and tidal wave yesterday, bring gruesome details of the disaster, and the death list is growing with rapidity. Some estimates place the death list at 500. More tremors were felt to-day.

The government to-day began giving aid to the stricken quarters. Whole villages along the Pacific Coast from Oaxaca to Acapulco were demolished.

Families were buried beneath the debris. Maimed and wounded are piled with the dying in the debris cluttered streets. Those who were unscathed have gone to the fields, taking clothing and food. The suffering is intense. The first quake occurred at 4 o'clock in the morning, and the victims were awakened from their sleep, not knowing what had wrought their doom.

Seek News of Americans.

A tidal wave swept Acapulco, carrying away hundreds of helpless persons which faced the sea front. Chalpichapa in Guerrero was totally demolished. Tuxpan, Puebla and Merlin, towns a hundred miles inland, were shaken, and but loss of life there was known.

Hundreds of Americans are in the stricken zone, and the United States consulate here are busy every minute trying to learn if any were killed.

There were but few of the second shocking Mexico City and causing six deaths in the earliness of the morning. A large American colony in this city, but no foreigners were hurt. Many of the foreigners are now in the mountain cities in the stricken zone, and the people, fearing that these forces will unleash, refuse to return to their homes.

Tales of Suffering.

Iguala, Teloloapan, Coyuta, Cutzamala, Amatepec, Suitpec also suffered.

Refugees arrived at various towns from these places to-day and told terrible stories of the disaster. Bridges were destroyed, railroad ware twisted and rendered useless by the tremors.

At Zacatula, Providencia, Aleyacx, Ayutla, Oaxaca, Acapulco and Tuxpa there was destruction of life and property. In Mexico City there was a relief of panic. The people were just recovering from their fear of the first shock when the second and more severe also occurred.

MARRIED MEN FLIRT? OH DEAR SURE, STOP IT

STAMFORD, Ct., July 31.—Addison Pelgney, who is a constable, has gone to Mound Beach to inaugurate a campaign against flirting. His services have been engaged by cottagers and persons living in the vicinity of the beach. The fact that the season's output of flirting has already exceeded the demand. Palmer said the day:

"Honest, I'm ashamed to tell the number of married men who go to Mound Beach Mondays and Tuesdays to flirt with the girls.

If I did you can bet there would be some startling revelations.

It is understood that while Palmer's badge will be on the beach he will make a special effort to stop flirting on the part of men who are married and who sometimes forget it. The constable will patrol the beach and watch the bathing girls and will pay particular attention to the pier.

He says that he intends to interrupt as many conversations as he can and has already learned the various methods of flirting used by dashing young men. He remarked, the use of which he expects to be able to cope successfully with the most artful practitioner.

DAYLIGHT SAFE BREAKERS WORK

HAVERHILL, July 31.—In broad day light safebreakers entered the home of Victor Ambault at No. 76 Water street, and blew open the safe in the front room, a portion of his savings. From the safe they took $700 and a watch, and from the house two suits of clothing. Five bank books, representing deposits amounting to $5,000, were left in the safe.

Ambault is a Italian and is known as a frugal liver and a saving man. He had a practice of keeping his earnings and rents from his houses until they reached $1,000 before putting them in a bank. This evidently was known to the burglars. They left no clew to their identity.

The method of blowing the safe is a mystery to the police, for while there were several holes in the door, there were no marks of powder or nitro-glycerine on the inside.

If the lead around the packages of "SALADA" was weighed in with the tea, it would show profits to the Company of over half a million a year, but this is not done. Absolutely full weight of tea is given inside the "Salada" packet.

TROPHIES FOR BOSTON HUNTER

After nearly three years of adventure, and laden with trophies of the hunt in tropical Africa, William G. Sewall, better known as "Billy" Sewall, has returned to his home in Boston to-day. Since leaving home he has traversed Abyssinia, Somaliland and British, German, French and Italian protectorates in Africa.

A portion of the territory hunted over by Mr. Sewall is that in which Ex-President Roosevelt has been shooting recently. Mr. Sewall's rifle brought down seventeen elephants and specimens of all the animals of the African wilderness, including the lion, hippopotamus, buffalo, hartbeeste, antelope and rhinoceros.

One of his most interesting experiences was an interview with Menelik, the Negus of Abyssinia. The Ethiopian ruler looked very old, but his mind was keen and he exhibited great intelligence in the questions which he asked about things in Europe and America.

One of Mr. Sewall's most precious possessions is an ivory box inlaid with gold, presented to him by the Roma Trading Company in recognition of his having seen to it, as a captain of the Irish Guards who was taken ill in the wilderness.

PUTNEY DIES OF APOPLEXY

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 31.—An actor who has played a prominent part in every drama in the New Hampshire public for more than the past quarter of a century passed behind the scenes when Henry M. Putney, chairman of the State Board of Railroad Commissioners, died at his home on Walnut street. After having been in ill health for two years, following a slight paralytic stroke, Mr. Putney was seized with a serious sickness on Wednesday night last, followed by apoplexy, which caused his death. From Putney's boy to teacher, from school to the bar, and from the lawyer's office to a responsible post dotted the successive steps in Mr. Putney's career, while State and Federal offices had been entrusted to his care for many years.

BRIGHTON BOY AGAIN CHARGED WITH THEFT

Henry Webster, the fifteen-year-old Brighton lad who was held for the Grand Jury in the Brighton District Court the first of the week in connection with a breaking and entering case in Faneuil, has again fallen into the hands of the police.

With John Dalton, eighteen years old, living at No. 10 Fairbanks street, Brighton, he is charged with breaking and entering the home of Herbert A. Billings, No. 501 Bigelow street, on July 15, and the larceny of musical instruments, household goods and jewelry to the value of $160. Both Webster and Dalton belong to families which are held in respect in the Brighton district.

$173,977 FOR A CITY HALL

The Chelsea Board of Control to-day awarded the contract to build the new City Hall to Whiton & Haynes on a bid for $173,977. The figure is $38,023 below the original bid submitted by the firm, who were the low men when the proposals were opened a week ago last Wednesday. Their first figure was $212,000.

There was much surprise in Chelsea when the price of the City Hall was learned to be better by the architects, Peabody & Stearns, on June 23. William B. McClintock, chairman of the board, said:

"After careful consideration the board wishes to emphasize that it has sold from the first that the building should not cost more than $150,000."

There was also a general opinion among the taxpayers that, considering the low state of the city's finances, the board should not award the contract at a price more that which the chairman named in his bid. Many felt that the project should be put over for another year.

The contract awarded to-day does not include the heating and ventilating, and when completed it is said that the City Hall will cost something near $200,000.

MORE EARTHQUAKES; PANIC IN MESSINA

MESSINA, July 31.—Six perceptible earthquake shocks, two of them of considerable violence, have again thrown the inhabitants of Messina into panic. No damage is reported as now done, but the fear obtains that they were but precursors of more serious disturbances.

PLASTERERS NEAR END OF STRIKE

The striking plasterers are confident of winning their strike for a daily wage rate of $5.50 by Monday at the latest. Less than one hundred men are now on the strike roll, as a large number have been taken on at the increased rate of pay by general contractors, the sub-contracting master plasterers having given up their contracts. The Harvey company, which had five jobs on hand, made such an arrangement. Even if the master plasterers do not sign the scale, the strikers say, there is plenty of work for plasterers in other cities.

FLEW 40 MILES IN BIG BALLOON

PITTSFIELD, July 31.—Under favorable weather conditions, the balloon Pittsfield ascended from here yesterday morning, with William Van Sicet of this city as pilot and Robert McQuillen of Boston as passenger. The balloon started in an easterly direction. It landed at Amherst, 40 miles from here, after an uneventful trip.

HEALTH BOARD MAKES NEW MILK RULES

Four new rules concerning and regulating the handling of milk have been promulgated by the Boston Board of Health. The first, which will take effect on January 1 next, requires that all milk offered for sale excepting in restaurants or hotels shall be kept and sold in tight capped bottles of a type approved by the Board. The other three rules, effective to-morrow, require that all orders by the Board be promptly complied with by milk dealers; that no milk or cream be sold in the same room in which it is bottled, and that there shall be no mixing of other substances with milk.

MODERN METHODS OF TREATING ASTHMA AND HAY-FEVER.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 30, 1909.—Results of the careful research and extended investigations which have been carried on for many years past by physicians in Buffalo, as well as in other cities, in the treatment of Asthma, are now bearing fruit, and many important facts have been discovered, among them that the belief that the cause of Asthma is dampness, heat, smoke, pollen, odors, and such things, is an error. These influences may start the existing causes, as distinguished from the cause itself, but the cause itself is due to a specific poison or toxine in the blood. Many cures are now established that the disease is constitutional and that sprays, douches, cauterization, smoke, change of climate, and such remedies are useless except to give temporary and unsatisfactory relief. The symptoms are not the disease, but merely signs of the real constitutional trouble, which hitherto has resisted the best efforts of the medical fraternity to overcome.

It is a matter of the most vital interest to every sufferer to know that the result of exhaustive study and careful experimentation has been the perfecting of a simple remedy by constitutional treatment which is proving more and more successful as the age goes on, as experience from hundreds of cases which have been treated has shown that the disease is overcome and that the recurrences of the attacks of which we formerly dreaded the nights are enabled to sleep soundly and undisturbed, and the suffocating, sneezing and catarrhal symptoms are completely overcome. Many have already found several seasons pass by cured, without the slightest return of the old distressing symptoms.

The Hayes-Hayden Company, who are now for free distribution, tells the interesting story of the great work and its success in its booklet No. 1191. Any one interested can secure a copy and full information by addressing Hayes-Hayden Co., Hayes Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y., and asking for Bulletin 1191.

Thaw Under Cross-Fire of Both Justice Mills and District Attorney Jerome

THAW, IF FREED, WILL NAME PROMINENT MEN IN SUIT FOR DIVORCE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 31—The instant Harry K Thaw obtains his freedom, providing Justice Mills decides he is sane, he will institute proceedings against Evelyn Nesbit Thaw for absolute divorce, naming two or three well-known men in New York. This fact was learned today from reliable authority.

Young Mrs Thaw before leaving White Plains said she would not be surprised if her husband started proceedings against her, but she dared him to do so. She said she would give him the hottest fight he ever had.

It was also learned to-day that if Thaw is not successful in obtaining his freedom through the present proceedings he will, at once stop paying an allowance of $6,200 a year to his wife. He holds that her attitude was in part responsible for his return to the asylum, and that as he is an adjudged lunatic and a bankrupt she could not get a cent out of him.

"I Will Name Sixty Mrs. Reids."

Attorney Morschauser, representing Thaw, also said that if young Mrs. Thaw sued for divorce her action would be opposed.

Mrs. Thaw admitted that she intended suing for divorce when she was shown a dispatch from Reno, Nev., saying that she was preparing to take up a legal residence there.

"Instead of naming the one 'Mrs. Reid,' I shall name sixty 'Mrs. Reids,'" declared the young woman.

"I shall be just as quick in starting suit for divorce as I have been slow in making up my mind to it," she said. "The papers will be served on Thaw just as soon after the finish of the proceedings at White Plains as they can be prepared."

Mrs. Thaw said as soon as possible after the divorce proceedings she will go to Europe. The suit will be tried here, she declared.

Young Mrs. Thaw let it be known that, while she had suspected that Thaw was leading a double life, just prior to the shooting of Stanford White, it needed the testimony of the Merrill woman to confirm her suspicions.

While Thaw and Evelyn were living at the Hotel Lorraine, he, as "Professor Reid," also had rooms at the home of Mrs. Merrill, where he introduced at least one of the 200 girls who called there to see him as "Mrs. Reid," according to the testimony of Mrs. Merrill.

Evelyn Wants to Testify Again.

Evelyn Thaw expects to testify again, as she has not yet freed her mind alto gether. She is eager to go on the stand and tell more about her husband. District Attorney Jerome said to-day that he did not know whether he would put her on the stand.

Jerome is now putting to his case in refutation of that made on behalf of Thaw that he is sane. The burden of proof is upon Thaw, and his case is all in. Jerome has put in the most of the family and court records of the case and will swear witnesses to rebut some of the evidence given for Thaw.

Thaw himself was plainly downcast today as the result of Justice Mills' questioning yesterday, when the court persisted in making him answer questions about his "exaggerated ego," the symptom of insanity which most attracted the alienists. The court insisted that Thaw tell him why he had resisted his own attorneys, even Mornchauser, his present counsel, and asked numerous other disconcerting questions, tending to draw out admissions that Thaw had an exalted and exaggerated opinion of himself.

Thaw's Fate in the Balance.

Thaw had not looked for the court to take a hand in the questioning and was plainly embarrassed.

The fate of Thaw, who for three days was subjected to the most grilling examination ever made of an alleged lunatic in this State, hangs in the balance to-day. Not one person in the crowded courtroom who heard Justice Mills, the sole arbiter of the case with attitude quiet and kindly, for all the world like an indulgent father questioning his son, knows definitely what was being revolved in that long, practised legal mind, or what conclusions, if any had been reached. The case will be resumed Monday.

DIAMOND CLASH ON LAWSON'S FARM

The Hatherly club of North Scituate will play its big game of the season at Dreamwold to-day, when it opposes the Dreamwold team. Many scholastic stars are in the lineup of the Hatherly nine. George Weeks, a New York High School pitcher, and Art Rowbotham, formerly of Stone School and Merrowland, will do the twirling. Kennedy of Dorchester High will catch. Tower will cover third base, George Wells of Dorchester High, second base, Russell, Harvard Academy, Lon Angeles, shortstop; Scott Smith of Roxbury Latin, third base; Whitcomb of Haverhill High, left field, Horton Dexter, Commack, centre field, and Hodgson, right field.

MINISTERS PLAY BASEBALL GAME

WINSTED, Ct., July 31.—Winsted has more preachers who play baseball than any other town of its size in New England. To-day they are playing a match game. The Rev. George W. Judson, pastor of the First Congregational Church, is pitching for his club, and the Rev. E. W. Snow, pastor of the Second Congregational Church is on second base for his team. A preacher will umpire.

An automobile trip over the continent is coming with Dr. Robert W. Lovett, a surgeon at Harvard, to what Ex-Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., is looking forward to for the coming month. On August 14 he is to give an important address at the dedication and presentation of a statue of Lafayette, at Vienne, in France. Soon after the celebration and dedication Mr. Guild and Dr. Lovett will begin their tour, and before they arrive in Boston will have visited many countries and seen most of the historical landmarks.

The Boston lassi of Boston arrived in Bar Harbor yesterday, where they are to spend the remainder of the Summer at the Belmont.

Senator Whitbroy Murray Crane, who hastened to Dalton this week on receiving news of the birth of a second son, has returned to Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Dixey and Miss Rosamond Dixey of Beacon street have returned to Tanglewood, their country place in Lenox, after an extensive motor trip along the North Shore.

Professor Louis Allard of Harvard University gave another of his popular lectures before an audience of Summer residents. The lecture was given at Villa Crear, the attractive Summer home of Mrs. Walter Hempstead West Manchester.

One of the frequent week-end guests at Newport this Summer is Captain C. F. G. Sowerly, naval attaché of the British Embassy at Washington.

Mrs. George Gordon King entertained Mr. and Mrs. H. McKee Tyndle last evening at a dinner in honor of their guests, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, who are thinking of spending the remainder of the season at Newport.

Miss Caroline T. Lawrence has been in Boston for a short time this week. She came up Wednesday with Bishop William Lawrence to attend the funeral of Dr. William R. Huntington, later rector of Grace Episcopal Church in New York.

Miss Theodora Roosevelt, who is a guest at Villa Pertusio, in Italy, the home of her sister, Miss Carow, entertains the Italian Ambassador of the United States and the Baroness Mayer des Planches this week. The Ambassador and his wife arrived in Porto Maurizio, Italy, yesterday. Miss Ethel Roosevelt and Archie Roosevelt will accompany their guests on a trip to the Alps during their stay.

AUTHOR, SOLDIER, MERCHANT DEAD

Major Charles W. Stevens, a retired member of the dry goods trade of Boston and the second oldest past commander of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, is dead at Waterford, Me., where he has been living for some time. He was well known as "the author of 'Fly Fishing in Maine Lakes'" and similar works, and, about nine years ago he wrote an admirable paper upon "A Half Century Review of Boston's Dry Goods Trade," which was read before the Bostonian Society.

DEW WADERS INVADE LAWN AT TAFT HOME

BEVERLY, July 31.—Oh, girl, there's a man."

There was a chorus of shrieks, a flutter of shirts and the patter of bare feet on the greensward of Burgess Point.

Secret Service Agent Barker rubbed his eyes and wondered if he had been asleep, although a moment before he was wide awake. It was 6 a. m. The Taft residence, the Kane house and the Bell cottage showed no sign of life, but he could see white garments disappearing around the turn in the driveway.

Mr. Barker refuses to state what he saw and the reporters were Mrs. Alonzo B. Cook's secret," he says with a grin. It happens, however, that he was not the only spectator. The other is supposed to be Mr. Point, and he refuses to give a vivid description of what happened.

They came in an automobile, and there were six of them," this man declared. "They left their machine in the road and walked down the driveway. They disappeared into a clump of bushes, and the next thing I saw was all six walking in single file out on the lawn all wet with dew. The first girl held her skirts high and her feet were bare. I am sure of that. All the other girls were dressed. I mean, undressed—just like her. They romped across the lawn, laughing and talking and stepping gingerly in the wet grass. One of them slipped and fell, and the others pushed her and rolled her around in the dew. Just then they saw a man sitting in a chair under a tree in front of the President's house and you should have seen them run. No, I didn't recognize any of them, and I don't suppose you'd find. But when I walked up the driveway after them, most that clump of bushes, I found a pair of shoes. I'm not to say what it is, but the owner can have by calling at it in person and no questions asked."

Not Beverly Girls.

The identity of the barefoot party is unknown, although the police of Beverly indignantly declare that they were not among them. The fact that they came in a machine would seem to indicate that they were from a distance.

The lawn at Burgess Point is said to be the finest on the North Shore, and its fame might have brought devotees of wading in dew to sample it.

It is also likely that it was a maiden's wager on the part of some of the younger set that the invasion of the grounds has not been reported to the police, and will not be. Chief of Police Underwood says was heard to say that such invasions will be welcomed in a day like this, and every one younger accordingly will be eagerly sought by the newspaper men stationed in Beverly.

Howsomever, the mob wdig pob gkqolgkq

Quiet at Burgess Point.

Life at Burgess Point continues to be quiet. Miss Helen and Robert spend much of their time with young people at the Essex, Myopia and Montserrat clubs. Myopia spends most of the day in his sailing duty. A quartermaster has been detailed from the fleet to show him how to sail a boat. He is proving an apt pupil.

Mrs. Taft in the afternoon walked into the town with her daughter, visited the public library and made several purchases. She omitted her auto ride.

Good Things to Eat.

Housekeepers who must have meat for their tables even in hot weather will be glad to know that lamb has declined a little in price, and that the kind quarters may be bought for 18 to 22 cents a pound.

Veal, another meat for Summer eating, is now the cheapest meat of the market, according to one of the largest dealers, for 15 to 20 cents a pound is asked for cutlet cuts and 12 to 18 cents a pound for the loin.

Poultry remains about the same, except ing chickens for broiling, which may be had for 25 to 30 cents a pound. Chickens for roasting are 20 to 40 cents a pound, and fowls are 20 to 22 cents a pound.

Turkeys range from 25 to 28 cents a pound, goslings are 25 cents, ducklings 25 cents, capons 35 cents and squabs $2.50 to $4 a dozen, and pigeons $2.50 a dozen.

The price of fish is about the same as last week.

Green vegetable and fruit stalls are still well stocked. To be sure, green peas are scarce, but one may be had for 25 cents a peck; green corn, which is coming to take the place of peas, brings from 40 to 50 cents a dozen; while tomatoes are selling for 20 cents a pound being the price, instead of 25 cents.

For 10 cents one may buy a bunch of rumpkins, a head of string beans, a pound of sweet potatoes, or of Spanish onions, a head of lettuce, or a bunch of carrots, or a new summer squash. Celery is 20 cents a head, chicory is 15 cents, and lettuce is only 5 cents a head. New and old potatoes are each 50 cents a peck.

Cucumbers are now selling for 40 cents a dozen, and limes, which make a delicious drink, are from 20 to 50 cents a dozen.

There is no prospect of a fall in the price of eggs. For the best home article 38 cents a dozen is asked, with 33 and 28 cents a dozen for cape and westerns.

CURLEY SNEERS AT DONOVAN "PUPPETS" CHARGES OF GRAFT

Alderman "Jim" Curley says "there is no reply to make" to the flat charges of grafting made against him by Councilman Thomas M. Joyce at the last meeting of the Common Council.

Curley as much as says that Joyce is one of James Donovan's puppets.

The BOSTON AMERICAN reporter had the following interview to-day with Curley:

"Are you going to make a public reply to the attack made on you by Councilman Joyce?"

"Representing the Ward 17 Tammany Club, my sight is with Mr. Donovan, not with his puppets."

Mr. Joyce, Curley, Mr. Joyce has made certain specific charges against you. Are you going to reply to these?"

"There is no reply to make. I can only repeat my first reply my fight is with Mr. Donovan, not with his puppets."

Former Representative John J. Mansfield of Ward 17, who is a prominent Boston lawyer with offices in the Tremont building, declared that there should be a pronounced awakening of public sentiment as to the AMERICAN'S expose of the meeting of the Common Council last Thursday night. He said:

"Being familiar with conditions in Ward 17, having led in the reform movement fight for cleaner politics in that section, I can truthfully say that this political squabble and grafting on is really a fight between Alderman James M. Curley of Ward 17 and ex-Senator Thomas F. Curley of Armandine street, Dorchester. It remains to be seen whether the voters of Ward 17 can distinguish the dross from the virgin metal.

"The article on the meeting of the Public Common Council Thursday night is a step toward getting clean politics. It plainly shows that there ought to be a change in the governing power in Boston. Such newspaper stories, as the AMERICAN prints ultimately result in a pronounced awakening of public sentiment in favor of electing God-fearing men to public office and relegating into political oblivion those who prostitute the attribute of graft in enriching themselves from the public purse."

It is doubtful if any newspaper article on Boston's city government ever created more agitated discussion than the meeting made over the BOSTON AMERICAN'S illustrated report of the last meeting of the Common Council.

Leaders Take Thought.

The ordinary politician, the common or garden "pol," is running around in circles, so to speak, shrieking injured innocence and vain threats in the same breath.

The political leaders, seeing the Common Council pulsted, for once at least, in true colors, are thoughtfully considering the effects of the exposure.

The BOSTON AMERICAN'S report gave a true picture of the way the Common Council transacts business. This picture is one that some citizens are contemplating with mixed feelings.

The feature of the meeting was Joyce's attack on Alderman James Curley, during which he said in part:

"Since he has been a member of the upper branch of the City Council no measure that has been introduced by him has been surrounded by any suspicion of graft but Curley has been prominently mentioned in connection therewith.

"The Bath House, for which he received a substantial sum, and this is not an admission by him but a voluntary confession made in the spirit of bragadocio to a great many persons and not confined to any one; the Dome fetcher-home steal, the use in which Curley wabbled from one side to the other and finally landed on the side of the Home telephone.

Charges by Joyce.

"Does Curley forget his visit to the Tremont Building to a certain lawyer's office fifteen minutes after the adjournment of the meeting upon the day that they were granted the franchise? Will he deny that he displayed some crisp bank notes? Of the color of which he is made—yellow.

"Will Curley deny now that Mayor John F. Fitzgerald was for him in the year 1907 when Curley was chairman of the Committee on Building Department, and told him that he would have to let up on holding

"By George, I never saw anything like the effects of that new treatment, Protone, for the building up of weight and lost nerve force. It acted more like a miracle than a medicine." said a well known gentleman yesterday in speaking of the revolution that had taken place in his condition. "I began to think that there was nothing on earth that could make me fat. I tried tonics, digestifics, heavy eating, diets, milk, beer and almost everything else you could think of, but without result. I had been thin for years, and began to think it was natural for me to be that way. Finally I read about the remarkable processes brought about by the use of Protone, so I decided to try it myself. Well, when I look at myself in the mirror now, I think it is somebody else. I have put on just 30 pounds during the last month and never felt stronger or more "savvy" in my life."

Protone is a powerful inducer of nutrition, increases cellgrowth, makes perfect the assimilation of food, increases the number of blood-corpuscles, and as a necessary result builds up muscles and solid, healthy flesh, and rounds out the figure.

For women who can never appear stylish in anything they wear because of their thinness, this remarkable treatment may prove a revelation. It is a beauty maker as well as a form builder and nerve strengthener.

It will cost you nothing to prove the remarkable effects of this treatment. It is absolutely non-injurious in the most delicate system. The Protone Company, 1503 Protone Bldg., Detroit, Mich., will send to anyone who sends name and address, a free 50c package of Protone, "as in full instructions to prove that it does the work. They will also send you their book on "Why You Are Thin," free of charge, giving facts which will probably astonish you. Send coupon below today with your name and address.

IG REALTY SALE AT THE SOTTH END

Another big volume of sales of realty in the city and suburbs was recorded today, the heavy trading being due largely to the close of the month.

In the South End, the Dighton, a five-story brick apartment house and 3,030 square feet of land at No. 1455-1460 Washington street, corner of East Dedham street, and extending through to Myrtle street, have been sold by the Masonic Education and Charity Trust to Samuel C. Laurence, title passing through George A. Hayward. This property is assessed for a total of $39,500, of which $10,600 is on the land; but the price paid was $27,000.

Thomas J. Emery has sold to Elizabeth Curtis et al the four-story swell front brick residence and 2,275 square feet of land at No. 507 Beacon street, back bay, Massachusetts avenue and Charlesgate East. This estate is taxed on a total valuation of $25,000, of which $5,000 is on the land.

William H. Woodman and A. Wilbert have sold their property numbered 94 Huntington avenue, rear Garrison street, to Walter Channing of Brookline. It consists of a four-story and basement house and 3,000 square feet of land, all assessed for a total of $20,500, of which $10,000 is on the land. Mr. Channing buys for investment. Colman & Street were the brokers.

The three-story and basement, brick residence and 2,300 square feet of land at No. 107 St. Botolph street, near West Newton, has been purchased by Cornelia A. Whitney from Lewis A. Stadig. This property is taxed on a total valuation of $15,500, of which $5,800 is on the land.

Another South End property sold is that at No. 28 Hale street, corner of Washington, to the Washington street investment company. A four-story dwelling house and 1,270 square feet of land, which has been conveyed to Becky Wasserman in Samuel Rose, et ux. The estate is assessed for $11,800, of which $4,300 is on the land.

William H. Woodman and A. Wilbert Starratt have purchased from Walter Channing of Brookline the one-family three and one-half story brick house and 1,005 square feet of land at No. 3 Garrison terrace, which is assessed for a total of $11,400, of which $6,000 is on the land. Colman & Street were the brokers.

Salvatore Di Stefano et ux. have sold to Carlo Sciarri the four-story brick dwelling house and 1,350 square feet of land at No. 16 Hale street, near Green street, South End. The property is taxed for a total of $9,300, of which $5,000 is on the land.

William H. Woodman and A. Wilbert Starratt have sold for Mary E. Sullivan the property at No. 11 Glenwood Pewsley terrace, Brighton, to Hesser Hui. The parcel consists of a three and one-half-story brick house and 900 square feet of land, all assessed for $9,000, of which $3,000 is on the land. Colman & Street were the brokers.

J. Murray Howe, No. 28 State street, reports the sale of the three and one-half-story brick house and 1,950 square feet of land at No. 30 East Brookline street, near Harrison avenue, South End, which has been purchased by Mrs. Sullivan, executrix of the late George F. Parkman, et al estate, from Jacob Sloss, to whom the property had been bequeathed by the testator. The estate is valued by the assessors at a total of $7,900, of which $3,900 is on the land.

Harris Silverstein has sold to Joseph Weinberg the three-story brick house and 1,650 feet of land at No. 103 Dorr Park street, between Harrison avenue and Albany street, South End; which is assessed for a total of $7,000, $1,700 being on the land.

THE STERN PROFESSOR

POLICE HUNT KIDNAPPERS IN BACK BAY

The police of the Back Bay Police Station are leading every effort to locate the three suspicious looking individuals who have been lurking in the vicinity of Gainsboro street during the past week. The three men are believed to be kidnappers and are using a boy about eight years old as a decoy. The entire population of that fashionable district is aroused, and frenzied mothers and fathers have warned their children to stay close to their homes and not wander off with strange men.

Police headquarters has been receiving telephone messages regarding the suspicious actions of the "kid," and the Back Bay Police Station, which has been notified, has several plain clothes men working on the case.

It is believed they are members of an organized band of kidnappers, waiting for a chance to abduct one of the children of a wealthy family and hold the child for ransom.

The latest report to reach the ears of the police came about dusk last evening. Several children were playing "hide and go seek" on Gainsboro street, when one of the trio became envious of the attentions of an automobile ride, tried to entice a pretty little girl away from the rest of the children while the two companions waited on the opposite corner. Just at this time the mother of the little girl appeared and called to her. The child left the men and ran to her mother, and the three men fled in the direction of Copley square.

Several people had witnessed the incident, and rode at once notified the police. A squad of officers was immediately detailed, but no trace of the men could be found. Neither the name of the child nor that of her mother could be learned.

The men have made several inquiries in the neighborhood that aroused suspicion. They have been posing as private detectives, but their appearances belie their alleged vocation. The police have a good description of them, and they will be arrested on sight.

BEVERLY GIVEN KIDNAPPING SCARE

BEVERLY, July 31.—This city was given a kidnapping scare this morning, over-heated individual saw a carriage in which were a man and woman, was driven at a sharp clip up Essex street. The woman held in her arms a little poodle dog which kept up a continuous barking.

The excited resident mistook the noisy dog for a crying child and visions of a kidnapping entered his brain. Patrolman J. F. Clayton, in whose district all the happenings were taking place, was told of the kidnapping rumor by several persons. It occurred to him that he had seen the carriage in question go by, and he also recollected that he had taken particular notice of the party as his attention was attracted by the dog. The police search for kidnappers was called off at once.

WIFE GOT $1 WEEK TO KEEP FAMILY OF 9

DIVORCE SUIT MENU.

Gave his wife fifteen cents a day to buy food for a family of nine.

Bought stale cereal at twenty-five cents a barrel for the children to eat.

Bought potatoes at ten cents a gallon, added an equal quantity of water to it, and said it was "fine for the children."

Brought home one link of pork sausage for each of the family.

Insisted that his wife use only melted lard as gravy on the children's bread.

Provided no little money for meat that the family had to eat himself, which her husband bought by the barrel was originally bought by Gerlcha's brother, to be used as feed for cows.

But my husband seemed to think hog feed was good enough for the children," she added.

In spite of his wife's testimony as to the things which he did, Gerlchs testified that Mrs. Gerlchs refused to take care of his four children, would not mend his garments, would not cook his meals, would not wash the clothes.

He testified that he had to come home and do the washing and hang out the clothes, though he is a paper hanger. "But," he added, after enumerating these things, "my wife was a good house keeper."

Asked what he meant by that, he said: "Well, she was my housekeeper for a year before we were married, and she was a good one. I wish I had kept her as my housekeeper instead of making her my wife."

FINDS LOST JEWEL AFTER A DREAM

WORCESTER, July 31.—George A. Moore of No. 724 Main street believes in dreams, now that he has recovered through a dream the $250 diamond ring he lost in February at a barn dance in Holden Town Hall. Moore says: "The other night I had a dream in which I could see my ring lying in a stone gutter at the rear end of the Holden Town Hall. I didn't take very much stock in it, but I told a woman friend, who said: 'Go to Holden and look in the gutter. I went to Holden, looked in the gutter, and there, to my joy and astonishment, was the ring."

Here Are Some More CHOWDER Recipes for Mr. Hicks

NEARLY everybody in New England knows something about clam chowder. And nearly everybody wants to tell John T. Hicks how it ought to be made. Have you joined the procession yet? Mr. Hicks is so eager to know how to make the best chowder that he offered $5 for the best recipe received through the BOSTON AMERICAN. The AMERICAN offers an other $5 for the second best recipe. Bushels of answers have been received, but the race is still open. Here are some samples of New England clam chowder, as submitted in the contest:

HOW DOES THIS STRIKE YOU?

The materials needed for a real chowder are fifty round clams, a large bowl of salt pork cut up fine, the same of onions finely chopped, and the same or more if you desire of potatoes cut in slices. Wash the clams very thoroughly and put them in a pot with half a pint of water; when open take them from the shells and chop fine, saving all the clam water for the chowder; fry out the pork very gently, and when the scraps are a good brown take them out and put in the onions to fry; they should be fried in a frying pan, and the chowder kettle made very clean before they are put in it, or the chowder will burn. Add a quart of hot water to the onions; put in the clams, clam water and pork scraps. After it boils, add the potatoes, and when they are nearly done the chowder is finished. Just before it is taken up, thicken with a scup of powdered crackers, and add a quarter of fresh milk. If too rich add more water. No seasoning is needed, but salt and black pepper.

MRS. J. RUSSELL.
No. 5 Bertram street, Neponset.

NOT HARD TO PREPARE.

Take 100 clams, six large potatoes, two onions and a half-pound of salt pork; cut the pork in small pieces and fry brown; add the onions and brown them; pour the fat into a saucepan and put a layer of potatoes, a little onion and pork and a layer of clams, salting and peppering each layer; cover with boiling water and boil for half an hour. In the meanwhile boil a pint of milk, and when it is boiling point break into it a dozen crackers and a heaping tablespoon of butter; put the chowder in a tureen and pour the boiling milk over it, or lay the crackers in the chowder dry and pour the boiling milk over all.

MRS. MAY RUSSELL.
No. 35 Bertram street, Neponset.

TRY GRANDMA'S STYLE.

You have never tried Grandma's clam chowder if you have been unable to make a chowder to suit you. It's perfectly easy and simple to cook and my directions even a child will understand. Here it is: Slice four or five onions nice and thin; brown one-half pound of fine pork, and put the onions in; add five potatoes, cut not too thick, and half peck of clams chopped fine, cover with water, boil till done, then you have the best chowder under the sun.

MRS. F. G. BRADLEY.
No. 257 Massachusetts avenue, Boston.

TIPS THAT TELL THE COUNTS.

I know that my chowder will taste much better than it looks on paper. Just try it.

Take one-half peck of steamer clams, one-quarter pound of salt pork, six medium onions, eight potatoes, one quart of milk. Cut the pork in dice, cook the onions in pork fat for a few minutes, add the clams, then onions and potatoes in kettle and water, onions and potatoes are done clams cook. When potatoes are done add clams and one quart of hot milk and a piece of butter the size of an egg. Season to taste. Serve hot.

FIORA M. GILFATTER.
No. 322 Rock Island, Hough's Neck.

THIS IS A LADIES' EXPERIENCE.

I have been cooking clam chowder for thirty years and have never failed to tickle the palate. Here is the way to do it: Take four quarts of clams in the shell, open and save the liquor, which will be about a quart, strain before adding to the chowder. If clams are large chop in two. Half a pound of pork cut in dice and fried out. Six medium potatoes peeled and sliced medium thickness, three good sized onions sliced—if you like onions. Put liquor in with pork fat, also add pint of water; put in layer of potatoes, layer of onions, half a dozen crackers, season to taste and let it boil until potatoes are nearly done. Now add the clams; do not let them boil long for the longer they boil the tougher they are. Have a quart of hot milk to add and let come to a boil if you like milk in your chowder. This will make enough for six.

CIRCLE HALF THE EARTH IN TWENTY DAYS

Three cablegrams received by the BOSTON AMERICAN show that the New England world racers have completed half the circuit of the globe in twenty days. The rearward and eastward racers will soon pass each other to-day on the Japan Sea, the westbound tarlande on the regular steamer, while Berlandis and Peter Cohen, his escort, have found it necessary to charter a special steamer in order to connect with the Empress of Japan, which leaves Yokohama on Tuesday.

Morris and Cohen are having some exciting experiences, as appears from their cables. The last stages of the passage across Siberia was made under guard of soldiers and Cossacks, sent out to protect the trains against attack by Chinese bandits, who for several days before the boys passed through Irkutsk had been trying to wreck and dynamite trains and bridges. The situation in Manchuria was serious, for the boys moved to fore and reached Vladivostok in safety.

A cable from Tsuruga, Japan, signed by H. L. Waltman, the BOSTON AMERICAN correspondent with the world racers, shows that he has arrived there safely and within an hour and a half of Vladivostok. He will remain in the Czar's Asiatic stronghold until today, when he will leave a train for the dash across Siberia.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, July 31.—Final settlement of the tariff dispute at Washington is being accepted as a bull argument on the stock market, even though it will mean a quick boom in manufacturing. Money conditions are so unusual that, whereas bankers had figured on high rates for funds immediately following the passage of the tariff bill, they now think there will be enough money in every one as a self-campaign, a boom in business and a crop movement of the size of those separate and unparalleled performances going on at the same time—all under the same circus tent—don't you see?

$ $ $

Professional traders who are on the wrong side of the market are trying to fight against some scheme to stop the advance on the plea that a mandatory bull market which Congress, by the Aldrich currency law, compels Wall Street to carry on, the bears have an idea isn't if they can prove the Aldrich law unconstitutional. It will help the market. Their only hope lies in that paragraph of the constitution which says that Congress shall fix the value of money. The Aldrich law empowers the Secretary of the Treasury the power to fix the value of money because he has the discretion of accepting "any security" as a basis of emergency currency. This is a delegation of power of Congress which may upset the law if it is attacked. The law the Aldrich law declared unconstitutional, stocks would break an average of at least 25 per cent. in a day.

$ $ $

New York Central is Harriman's new leader in the stock market. On its record as a dividend payer and victim of misman-agement Central is worth about $100 a share, but the street is buying it because of Harriman's promise that it shall be a railroad.

$ $ $

It is not known that the Rockefeller interest had drawn profits in Union Pacific. Shortly after the stock was put on a 10 per cent. basis Harriman stated that the amount would be paid for many years, even if money had to be taken out of the surplus to meet the payments, a contingency which to-day looks very remote. At 207½ the shares may be prohibitive to rank and file speculators, which is not a necessity, on the contrary, it is one of the elements of strength. With miscellaneous speculators eliminated with the boom in the keeping of rich investors and in the conservative custody of those only who can afford to gamble in high-priced issue, Union Pacific is in no more danger of speculative disintegration than it was when Rockefeller first joined the company.

$ $ $

According to representatives of the United States Steel Corporation, there is absolutely no foundation for recent reports that a bond issue representing all or part of the cash outlay in connection with the building of the Gary plants is to be created. The Gary plant will cost more than $100,000,000 when fully completed, and every dollar spent thereon will represent money taken from earnings.

It can be stated that the policy of the management of the steel corporation from now on will be to give the common shareholders a better return on their investment. In other words, the steel corporation believes the amount of money it has put into new construction and assets has been sufficient to offset the "water" injected into the various properties when they were formed, and there will be no heavy construction outlays in the near future at the expense of common dividends.

Notwithstanding that the United States Steel Corporation has increased its production to the extent of about 75 per cent. since organization, and has made new construction expenditures aggregating close to $300,000,000, the acquisition of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company, Union Steel Company, Clairton Steel Company, Rosedale Coke Company, and several other concerns, the preferred dividend and interest indebtedness is no more than it was compared with what they were at the time the corporation was formed. The company is to bond redemptions and the carrying charges on bonds by the conversion of preferred stock into bonds.

HIGH LOGAL STOCK PRICES

STATE STREET, July 31.—Noon.—New high prices were recorded in the local market as well as in New York this forenoon. The tone of the whole market was strong and healthy and augurs well for the coming month of the Summer season.

Superior Copper made a new high record at 51½, an advance of 1½ during the forenoon. Control of this company is held by the Calumet & Hecla, and the company, it is reported, can show earnings of $2 per share on a 13-cent copper market. Steel common also made a high record at 74⅜, although it went above this in New York.

Lake Copper was offered down 1½ points to 26 by the same people who were the buyers yesterday. North Butte spurted 1⅛ to 56½, and held the advance well The United States Smelting was again an active feature and rose almost a point to 54. Amalgamated was quiet but firm up to 84⅞.

Curb trading was of small dimensions, but generally a good tone prevailed. The feature was weakness in La Rose, which yielded to 7⅜.

AUTO KILLS CHILD.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 31.—Mary Sylvia, six years old, while playing about the highway in Warwick with other children, was frightened by a cow and ran into the road. She was struck by an automobile owned by Mrs. Eugene F. Phillips of No. 201 Waterman street, this city. The child's skull was fractured, and she died a few minutes later.

STOCK MARKET UPLIFT GOES ON

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The stimulus of the tariff situation obtained in Wall street to-day. Late trading was around the strong prices that had characterized early transactions, in continuation of yesterday's uplift, and the undertone appeared to be every whit as encouraging as the surface conditions.

Such fractional recessions as had been occasioned by bears and profit-takers were more than offset by subsequent prices.

Net gains extending to almost 2 points were scored in Great Northern Ore, Canadian Pacific and American Car and Foundry, while leading retained its early lead with an extreme gain of 2¾ points to the final transactions.

FAINTS AT MOTHER'S TRIAL

When Mrs. Bridget Larose of North Cambridge was sent back to the House of Correction for six months by Judge Almy in the Cambridge Court to-day, Mrs. Georgianna Hyde, her eldest daughter, fainted, Almy, while Reading retained its early lead with an extreme gain of 2¾ points to the final transactions.

WITH MUTT IN NEW YORK

Attorney Salome Opens His Case Against Mr. A. Mutt—By "Bud" Fisher

"WONDERFUL SNAP SHOT OF DISTRICT ATTORNEY SALOME—THE FAMOUS PROSECUTOR AS HE APPEARED IN COURT TODAY, WHILE TRYING TO CATCH THE ALLEGED CRAZY MAN, MR. A. MUTT. SO ELOQUENT WAS THE GREAT ATTORNEY THAT HE GOT HIS TONGUE TWISTED AROUND HIS EYE TOOTH AND COULDN'T SEE WHAT HE WAS SAYING.

"ALL THROUGH THE HEARING THE DEFENDANT SAT WITH HIS EYES GLUED ON THE OVERNIGHT ENTRIES, OCCASIONALLY RAISING THEM FROM SAME IN ORDER TO ASK THE JUDGE, "WHO HE LIKED IN THE THIRD RACE?"

"MISS X. CEEDINGLY PLAYN, FORMER SCHOOL TEACHER, OF THE DEFENDANT'S, WAS CALLED AS A WITNESS. SHE TESTIFIED THAT MR. MUTT ALWAYS ACTED SLIGHTLY WOOZY EVEN AS A CHILD AND THAT ON ONE OCCASION HE ACTUALLY TRIED TO KISS HER. THIS TESTIMONY WAS VERY DAMAGING TO MUTT'S CLAIM OF SANITY.

"UNKNOWN SPECTATOR," WHO WAS OVERCOME BY GAS WHILE LISTENING TO ATTY. SALOME'S GREAT SPEECH.

CICERO MUTT, SON OF THE DEFENDANT, AFTER ASKING THE JUDGE TO ADJOURN COURT THAT HIS FATHER MIGHT GET A BET DOWN ON THE FOURTH RACE, ISSUED THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT:—"THIS CASE IS MERELY SPITE WORK ON THE PART OF THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY. HE IS SORE AND JEALOUS BECAUSE MY OLD GENT HAS BEEN LIVING DYERS WITHOUT WORKING JUST THE SAME AS HE HAS HIMSELF."

MEDALS FOR 1915 WINNERS IN MEETS TODAY

South Boston and the West End will hold meets in the 1915 series this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Leo H. Leary will conduct the South Boston meet at the M street playground, and John O'Donnell and Edmund Hynes will have charge of the events at Charlesbank in the West End.

The medals for to-day's games have been received and will be presented to the winners on the field at the close of the games this afternoon. The South Boston boys will receive their prizes from Frank S. Mason, chairman of the Boston 1915 boys' games committee, and the winners in the West End from Mitchell Freiman, chairman of the 1912 games. On the reverse side of the gold, silver and bronze medals are engraved the name of the event, and the date, with a space for the inscribing of the victor's name. The fourth prize is a ribbon badge with metal mounting bearing the name of the event.

Special arrangements have been made this week for the convenience of the spectators at both fields. At Charlesbank the ground has been so laid that the finish of the races will be on the side of the inclosure nearest the street railings, where the spectators will be admitted. The shot-putting will be parallel to this fence, and the jumping contests will also be located so as to be easily visible. Five special officers have been assigned from station 12 to assist in handling the crowds.

WALTER HAL HAS STRAPS.

HORSE SHOW DISBANDS.

The stables, grandstand, clubhouse and other fixtures of the Philadelphia Horse Show Association at Chestnut Hill have been offered for sale. The loss of $7,700 in 1908 and $3,700 this year has caused the Philadelphia Horse Show Association to disband.

KLING GOES TO THE REDS IS REPORT

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 31.—If not already transferred to the Cincinnati Club, John Kling is the promised bride of the Reds. Manager Chance and Griffith had a secret conference here yesterday, in which the Cub leader is said to have assured Griffith he could have first call on the hold-out catcher. Apparently Chance realizes Kling means business when he says he will not play ball for Murphy, so the club has decided to dispose of John when his eye and arm possess value in baseball.

The original pool parlor scheme at Cincinnati is said to figure in the negotiations. Chance and the Reds' manager first got together by wire. Griffith at Pittsburg held a long conversation with Chance over the phone, and the meeting was arranged. Griffith arrived yesterday morning and remained under cover at a hotel. Chance left the ball park at the end of the first game of the double-header for the conference that resulted in the deal. The terms of the transfer were not made public.

NOT TRAINING TRAMPFAST.

The reports recently appearing in several papers to the effect that Matt Williams had removed his stable from Pekin, Ill., to Galesburg, taking with him the champion two-year-old stallion Trampfast, are incorrect. Trampfast is in the stud, but may be sent to Williams about the first of September and be worked slowly during the fall.

FAST FUTURITY COLT.

J. L. Tarlton, Lexington, Ky., who is in partnership with E. S. Wells, in ownership of the two-year-old stallion Barytes, by Baron Dillon, 2:12, writes that they recently drove him a mile in 2:21¾, last half in 1:08. This colt is in the futurities.

TERRY'S BROTHER IN DRAW.

NEW YORK, July 1.—In a fast and furious ten-round battle at the Fairmount A. C. Philley McGovern, youngest brother of Terry, and Charley Goldman of the East Side went ten rounds, with neither having any advantage.

HAS NOT LOST BALL GAME IN 15 YEARS

SPOKANE, Wash., July 31.—Libby, a mining and lumber town on the north slope of the Cabinet Mountains, in the northwestern part of Montana, is the home of a team of amateur baseball players which has gone through fifteen seasons without a single defeat.

Experts declare there is not another club in the history of the game that can make such a showing. The Libby team has played against the best clubs in northern Idaho and western Montana, also traveling organizations.

The Libby club met summer a single one of the original nine of 1904, though the organization has been kept up and the team has played a regular schedule every season since that time.

WAGNER FORCED TO LEAVE FIELD

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 31.—Hans Wagner, champion batsman of the National League, the main standby of the Pittsburg team, was compelled to leave the game today in the middle of the fourth inning while he was at bat. He had swung twice at the ball when he dropped his bat with a groan of pain. Some days since Wagner hurt himself seriously while sliding to a base, and he has been in the game since against his physician's orders. Wagner had promised the doctor that he would remain out of the games succeeding the New York series, but he insisted that he must be in these games. Wagner says he will be in the game to-morrow, but the doctors say not.

GOLF GOSSIP NEWS OF THE LINKS

The United States amateur golf championship will be played on the links of the Wheaton Golf Club this year.

Play will start with eighteen holes on Labor Day, September 6, the best sixty-four to qualify for the second day's rounds when the lowest thirty-two players for the two days will start at scratch for the championship. It is expected that the final roundoff will be played on Saturday, September 11. The play will be at thirty-six holes for all rounds.

The Wollaston Golf Club can well boast of having the finest locker room in its clubhouse that there is in the state. Light, cool and comfortable, it is a pleasure to go into it, while the arrangement of lockers is very neat and well planned. On visiting the club a player always carries away with him two pleasant thoughts, namely the courtesies which are always extended to him by Mr. E. D. Little, vice-president of the club, and the steward's delicious blueberry pie.

Match play begins to-day for the two very handsome trophies offered by the South Shore Field Club. The qualifying round was played some few days ago. Match play will continue on August 1, 2 and 3.

Lawrence Page of the Commonwealth Country Club went down to visit his club professional, "Mike" Brady, at Tedesco, a few days ago. While there he played a very fine 77 over the course and enjoyed the trip very much.

Many of the best golfers of Boston and vicinity went down to Hatherly to take part in the open tournament to-day. A field of sixty odd golfers were entered for the event, but there were a great many post entries.

On Wednesday, October 6, a four-ball match of no little importance will be played on the course of the Hackensack Golf Club, N. J. The pairs will be two amateurs and two professionals. Walter J. Travis and Jerome D. Jardon, the brother of the noted player, are the amateurs, while their professional opponents are Findlay S. Douglass, James Maiden, Jr., and Alex Smith of the Wykagyl Country Club.

SOLD FOR BROOD MARE.

Seraphine (2:27¼) has been sold by Charles F. Simpson of Waterville, Me., to Charles Moore of Vassalboro, Me., and will be used for a brood mare. She is a sister of Simpson (2:27), which earned his record when a two-year-old.

SELLS GREEN TROTTER.

Manley Giles, Augusta, Me., has broken into the racehorse sport once more, he having bought of H. H. Lee, the well-known turf writer, the mare Martha L., counted one of the best trotting prospects in the State.

The AMERICAN is the Great Home Paper.

WILLIE LEWIS WILL TAKE ON SAILOR BURKE

NEW HAVEN, Ct., July 31.—According to Willie Lewis a fight between him and his old rival, Sailor Burke, for the welterweight championship is assured. Willie is in his training camp in West Haven and states that he has finally agreed to Fleet Burke, conceding the point of weight over which they have been haggling for some time. Lewis says that he will take on Burke, allowing him to weigh 138 pounds at 6 o'clock on the night of the fight. This is giving Burke about three pounds more than Lewis has heretofore been willing to concede.

Lewis says that the match will positively take place before the Fairmount Athletic Club of New York city in two weeks. The club has been trying to land this bout for months, and has made the fighters a liberal offer. Second off tonight's card the boxers will get a good-sized slice of the receipts.

Lewis is in splendid condition, and expects to win. He has been training here for three weeks, arriving not long after his return from France.

JACK O'BRIEN SHADES FLYNN

DENVER, Col., July 31.—"Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien had the better of Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, in a six-round go at the Auditorium.

O'Brien's margin was not great. In fact, Flynn finished the stronger of the two and in the final round had O'Brien in visible distress. Flynn throughout the fight rushed continually. He landed hard and often during the second round. In the first, third, fourth and fifth rounds O'Brien got his left jab and right uppercut in working order and had a good shade of all, although Flynn was fighting all the time.

ROXBURY TEAMS TO BATTLE FOR TITLE

There will be great doings at the National League grounds to-day when the Roxbury Athletics meet the Roxbury B. B. C. in the first of a series of three games for the championship of Roxbury. The greatest rivalry exists between these two teams, as some of the players on the Roxbury B. B. C. formerly played with the Athletics. Alderman Timilty will toss out the first ball, as the Alderman is a royal rooter for baseball. There will probably be quite a few city officials there to hear the Alderman rout for his favorite teams.

BARTLY CONNOLLY BOXES AT BERLIN

BERLIN, N. H., July 3.—Berlin sports will be entertained to-night in the Casino at Cascade Park with a twenty-round bout between Bartley Connolly of Portland, Me., and Tom "Kid" Goodman of Philadelphia. This is one of the biggest series of fistic evening scraps that were being pulled off at the Park under local management. Connolly and Goodman are both fast men and clever here.

FUTURITY FILLY IS LET UP IN HER WORK

The Understudy, the three-year-old half-sister to Leading Lady, 2:07, has been given a letup by Bob Proctor. It is likely that she will be unable to make her Futurity engagements this season. Benjamin Tyson and C. Harry are equally injured at the way their stallion, King Peter, 2:08¾, is working for Henry Titer by having recently turned Reliable in 2:14¾.

COLT OWNER CHALLENGES.

A brilliant two-year-old colt is at Leavenworth, Kan., and his owners want to match him against any two-year-old in America, trotter or pacer, that has had but two and one-half months' work, to go a quarter-mile. The colt is owned jointly by C. F. Sager, M. D., and his trainer, A. S. Gorham.

The Sunday American will contain a fascinating article on jewelry that every lover of the beautiful should read.

FLYNN WINS BOUT OVER M'DONOUGH

Porky Flynn, the West End mitt artist, proved conclusively that he is ready to begin the fall campaign in the ring by successfully taking the measure of Mickey McDonough, the Brooklyn strong boy, at the Apollo A. C. in a twelve-round bout.

It was Porky in front from the time the first gong sounded, but the out-of-town lad was game and took an awful licking from the local dispenser of wallops, and in the final innings came out and made it interesting for the victor.

Porky tried hard for a knockout, but Mickey was always there with the comeback and evaded the short route way of losing.

The turn present at the ringside were greatly interested in the semi-final bout between Ryan and Smally, two sailor lads from the U. S. S Salem, and they went a fast fore-and-aft exhibition of clever gait.

In a preliminary Kid Farmer won the award over Young Burke in five rounds.

Notes of the Red Sox Game

Gee! What a start. Four hits, one of which was Stahl's long homer, netted Boston its 1st two runs and then in the next three more tallies were got off four pitchers.

With Lord on third in the first inning Gessler bunted along the third base line on the squeeze play. Lord scoring in easy fashion. It was a swell play and got the fans going good.

Maddox almost took off a portion of the grandstand when he fell head on against it while trying for Jones' foul in the seventh session.

The Browns put over one run in the seventh when the fans least expected it. Pratt gave Hoffman a base on balls and he got to second on Grigg's infield out. With three out and two on bases, Hoffman started for third and easily scored when Jones tipped a single past Lord.

After the first couple of innings Dinneen settled down and kept the Red Sox hits few and far between. Pape who relieved Cicotte, not meaning that Cicotte was knocked out, also pitched superb ball.

Wagner executed a swell play on Stephen's grounder over second in the eighth inning of the opening game.

It was "Ladies' Day" and there was a good sprinkling of the bugeuses.

* * *

None of the pitchers in the first game sent one single man down by the strike out route.

In the first inning the Browns got a very cheap run as Wagner heaved the ball past Stahl giving the runner two bases. The Red Sox scored just as scratchy a run in their half of the second, when Griggs played French's fly too easily and let it fall, Stahl scoring.

* * *

Lord pulled off the best play of the afternoon in the third inning of the second game when he snooped up Criger's slow roller past Collins and got the runner at first.

Wagner speared a line drive with one hand from McAleese's bat in the fourth session that looked like a sure double.

The first hit Collins allowed was Hobe Ferris' bounc run into the left field bleachers. It tied up the score as it scored Williams, who had got to first through Collins' error.

There were plenty of home runs knocked. Ferris, Speaker and Stahl all hit for circuit clouts, Gilhooley got a triple and Gessler and Cicotte hit for doubles, all of which goes to show that there was plenty of excitement in the games.

Headaches

are brain signals that your system is in some way disorganized, and unless the cause of the trouble is removed, they will become more and more frequent, and gradually increase both in duration and intensity. Innumerable nerves are weakened by the repeated attacks, and the malady finds an easy lodgment wherever the bodily and mental conditions favor its return.

FEW CARS ESCAPE PENALTIES IN GLIDDEN TOUR

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

MARATHON RACE AT BEACH TRACK WITH BIG FIELD

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

A MUTT CERTAINLY HAS THEM ALL going. Colonel A. C. Drinkwater of Braintree, the well-known Democratic leader and horseman, who for many years has been one of the prominent figures of the Readville track, says:

"I think the Mutt cartoon series running in the BOSTON AMERICAN is one of the best newspaper features that I ever saw. It is a fine piece of slightly exaggerated human nature done in the happiest of veins. The author of Mutt is a genius. I watch for Mutt every day, and following his course has afforded me a great deal of real pleasure. I hope the cartoons will be long continued."

FROM WASHINGTON, D. C., COMES A story which speaks well for the popularity of baseball. A. Henry Gulliver, who has job in the municipal building there, has been granted fifty days leave of absence to enable him to finish out the season as an umpire in the Southern League. By the way, if I had a man with a name like that working for me, and he parted that moniker in the middle, I'd give him a leave of absence for a million years. Wonder if the players call him J. Henry, or simply Hen?

HERE'S A HOT ONE ABOUT A HOT spot, clipped from a New York paper. I haven't any dope on this except what he printed here, but I'm willing to lay a little better than even money that he's a real live odd scout:

The captain of the George P. Hudson, a five-masted schooner belonging to the Coastwise Transportation Company, which is controlled by the Bulgaria of the Hamburg-American Line on December 10, 1907, recovered in the United States courts yesterday a judgment of $670 for the loss of his evening clothes, a tuxedo coat, five boxers, gloves and cane apparel.

MY OLD FRIEND JOCKEY "SKEETS" Garner is back at his old tricks again—getting left at the post. "Skeets" is a very good rider—after they get away from the break—but he is a little bit sleepy at the barrier, sometimes. Once at the Latonia race track "Skeets" had the leg up on a "good thing," and when the barrier was sprung his horse took two steps and then, felt "Skeets" of course getting a rumble. He lay like a dead man, never moved, and several of the paddock employes hustled over to see how badly he was hurt. They took the ambulance buggy with them in case he was crippled badly. When the men gathered around him, "Skeets" opened his eyes and said, "Any one got a drink o' whiskey?" They didn't, and "Skeets" said, "Fine bunch of runners, get up and waited for the next race." room. How would you like to back his mounts?

IT JOYS ME GREAT TO BE ABLE TO ring in a little society in this dope column. I am in receipt of an invitation to attend a lawn fete, whist and entertainment next Tuesday afternoon and evening at Wardhurst and I sure am going if my other shirt comes back from the laundry in time. Wardhurst is at Lynnfield, Mass., and if you don't know that it is the happy Summer home of Mrs. "Hap" Ward, I feel sorry for you. The affair will be given under the supervision of Mrs. Hap herself, than whom there is no other hostess extant, and Mrs. Cora Eggleston, Mrs. M. F. Donovan and a number of the Lynnfield ladies have promised parts in the cast. The principal object of the proceeds will be to purchase a bell for the Lynnfield Fire Department so I'm going to cough up my dollar and look happy, almost as happy as happy Hap himself, who, I am informed by Mike Reagen, will encase his Adonis-like form in a complete new set of scenery for the occasion.

A SPORT, BOSTON, MASS.—YOU probably saw what you wanted on the sport page of yesterday's AMERICAN. It is there again today as long as the fight remains close.

W. C. G., A CINCINNATI FAN.—Thanks for them kind words in the letter part of your letter. Can't counter your allegations because your points are well taken and the defects will be remedied at once. Here is a little light for you on the Leach catch. Evidently you did not see the 10 o'clock sporting AMERICAN the night of the game, in which Tommy was given full credit for his remarkable performance. Kindly criticism helps make life worth while and I'm always glad to hear from a man from Vine street. Do you know the sign of the Big Mug?

AFTER NUMEROUS BATTLES, MIKE Scarcek has finally established his superiority over Marvin Hart, by punching the latter into submission in four rounds. There was a time when these men were well thought of in the pugilistic world. Hart got a decision over Jack Johnson several years ago, while Scarcek is known as the Jim Corbett as a possible champion. But since then Hart and Schreck have been generally ridiculed all over the country. If there is any such thing as a fifth rate class ring judges say these alleged pugilists have a clear title to being there.

The crack Boston Y. M. C. A. team clashes with the Y. M. C. A. team of Greater Boston in a bowling struggle. Maine and New Hampshire, playing the summer resort teams, and is meeting with great success. The boys expect to be gone about two weeks and would like to arrange games with some strong out of town teams for August and September.

Sport Dope, Boston American:

To decide a bet, kindly answer the following question: A on first base, B on second base, C on third base; D is batting for the 3d time, A starts for home after ball is caught, but seeing C is not touching third base, he turns back and is touched by baseman at base; C starts for second base. The writer claims that A is forced out due to the fact that B touched third base. Thanking you. FAN.

B could not force C off third. C was entitled to the base if he could get back in time. The same holds good with the other runners, as none of them was forced.

Sport Dope, Boston American:

Please answer in your column the duties of a coacher on third base line. Has he the right to stop a man after he has left down when turning around third base? A says he has, B says he has not. So please say who is right, and oblige, yours in sport. J. S. S.

Under the rules the coacher has no right to leave the box set apart for him, although it is frequently done without interference on the part of the umpire.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

To settle a baseball argument will you kindly answer the following question.

A contends that Jennings took hold of Delehanty and, as one result brought him from tail-enders to first place with but one change in the personnel of his team. B contends taking the place of Carr. "B" contends that Cobb was out with the Detroit team prior to Jennings' management, while "A" claims that he was. Kindly settle this for a friend in his statement. A STEADY READER.

JENNINGS TOOK HOLD OF THE DETroit club in 1907, succeeding Hughey Jennings, who resigned in 1906, figuring in 96 games. Detroit finished sixth in 1906. The personnel of the Detroit club in 1907 was practically the same as in 1906 with the exception of Rossman, who took Lindsay's place (but Carr's) at first base.

LANGFORD TO MEET KETCHELL LABOR DAY

Sam Langford and Stanley Ketchel will meet in a ten-round contest at the Fairmount A. C., New York, Labor Day. The match was clinched with Langford when the Fairmount Club's terms and announced that he would start East with the champion middleweight at once. According to the announcement of the latter, the men will weigh in at 158 pounds at 3 o'clock on the day of the fight. Langford will go to Northboro to finish his training.

Under the conditions there will be no decision given, but those who follow the game closely are inclined to think that the bout will practically decide itself while at that time unless there is a chance of a match at a longer distance later on.

Pfaff's Beer

The record of Pfaff's Beer is a guarantee of its excellence. Since 1857 it has been the standard beer of New England—leading all others in sales in this section.

Its output each year has shown a substantial increase over that of the previous year. Merit alone is responsible for this.

Pfaff's holds its old friends and makes thousands of new ones each year. Learn the reason.

K. OF C. HAS ANNUAL OUTING

Joseph D. Conway, who is rapidly coming to the front as an authority on amateur sports, has been invited to serve as referee at the big field day of the Columbus Club at Locust Street grounds today. Bart Sullivan, the well-known professional half-miler and coach, will be starter. DeWitt S. Adler of Brookline is clerk of course, while such well-known men as Colonel Billings, Jack Hosking, George V. Brown, James B. Connolly, John J. Hall, Thomas J. Conrick, Thomas J. Barry, Jack Haverty, Fred Tory, Jack Saunders, Frank M. Kenny, John B. Fitzpatrick, Jr., will also act as officials. The athletic games are under the direction of Manager Joseph Dowrity, who has picked an athletee to be ready for the first call not later than 2.15.

The athletic meet will be only a part of the field day, which promises to be one of the biggest reunions of the Knights of Columbus ever held in this State. Members of the order from all the local councils will be present and men of the famous Catholic brotherhood from surrounding towns will gladly contenize. The baseball game between the South Boston and the nine of the high fleship Missouri, the champions of the navy, is expected to be a very hot affair.

HORSE NEWS
TRACK GOSSIP

Denny Nolland has received at Readville the trotting mare Marion Chimes, by Chimes, out of a daughter of Manbino King. She is green, but can step a mile in the little training she has had.

A. J. Forbush thinks that he has another extra fast speeding pacer in Captain Sampson, 2:12¼, sire Sampson, dam Miss Charles, at Woonsocket.

Jimmy Gatcomb has taken his horses to Charter Oak Park, which includes Audubon Boy, 1:59¾, and several others.

There will be no exhibition this year by the Country Club Polo Association, Inc., and a meeting of the stockholders has been called for August 2 to formally settle up the matter. It is said $250,000 in the main New Hampshire town this fall. It will be held at the Rochester, Lancaster, Plymouth and Somersworth circuit.

Hollis Burgess has not been on Narragansett Bay this season, as was reported, but will enjoy his favorite sport around Marblehead.

Sir Thomas Lipton feels that he cannot challenge again for the America's cup under the existing circumstances, however, as friends visiting New York in August and personally laying before the commodore a challenge they can accept. William Fife, his designer, will likely accompany the famous cup fighter.

The Cheswick III., formerly owned by F. G. Bourne, Jr., of the Boston and Cambridge Yacht Clubs, opened up the season well at New Orleans by defeating the Cadillac and the Hiawatha.

Lasley is building a new thirty-six-foot power boat for Fred Richmond, designed by John P. Small. She will be equipped with a twenty-five-horsepower Lozier motor.

The work of Sonoma Girl in her preparation has been of such a sensational nature as that of Hamburg Belle, but when she made her debut at Hollenbeck Park last week she showed that she was in probably the best form that she has ever been in.

The racing stallion King Cole 2:14¼, son of Bingen 2:06¾, and Dot Turner (dam racing mare Redbird 2:07¼), is winning regularly on the Michigan half-mile tracks.

Kalantha, the sister to Cascanda (2:02), owned at Thorndale farm, has a colt at her side by the Thoroughbred horse Sweepstakes.

E. S. Hutchins of North Presbury, Me., was recently a visitor at the Johnson Farm, in Plymouth. He has bred to Cochato the mare Miss Edgemark, by Edgemark.

BASEBALL
NEWS AND NOTES

Sometimes even baseball teams are arrogantly proud of their records. Here are three from the Rangor (Me.) Northern, Maine League, known as the "Congress" team, which has a fine record: McGuigan, an Irishman; Lord, an Englishman; Gardella, an Italian; Pond, an Englishman; Bowden, a Welsh, and among the others are included a Hebrew, a full-blooded Indian, a Frenchman, a Scot, a German, a Canadian, a Spaniard, an American, and the emergency a Canadian-Frenchman. Also a Canadian-Indian and a Canadian-Portuguese.

The four Western clubs in the National League have better team batting averages than the Eastern clubs. The Giants stand highest in the East, and their mark is only .239.

Manager McAleer of the Browns has signed Outfielder Dubuc of the Hamilton semi-professional team. The time of his joining the Browns depends on when Outfielder Hendrix is one of the star shortstops who has been out of major league baseball for a year or two, has discovered a George Hogan of the University of Illinois, and at his suggestion Dubuc was started playing second base.

The latest report is that Cleveland is that Herman Schaefer, captain and second baseman of the Washington team, is going to buy a minor league baseball franchise. The rumor is that Herman has his eye on Toledo. If he does have any such idea he can get right on the Ohio capital team in the Central League, which is for sale, and which is now playing in Jennings' park. Herman would like nothing better than to help Herman in a deal of that kind, and that an official proclamation along the line will be promulgated soon.

Harry Swacina, who went from Pittsburg to Cincinnati and then to Kansas City in the Western League, has secured a job playing first base with Memphis in the Southern League. Swacina is a good hitter and should be a big addition to the team.

* * *

Outfielder Murray, one of the stars of the Atlantic League, if it is said, may become a member of the Pirates' team. He is a brother of Red Murray of the New York Giants and is leading the league in hits as well as total bases.

* * *

Mike Kahoe, Washington scout, says that the Senators have a fine team, and if they can get it to work smoothly while on one a road hit just to fast and one good now really is.

PRO RUNNERS READY FOR MARATHON RACE TONIGHT

Travelling the full Marathon distance of twenty miles 385 yards, a dozen well known runners, toe the mark in the Olympic classic event at the Revere cycle track tonight and out of the lot of nine men competing its a task to pick a winner.

As it is the first big professional out door events of the kind this Summer there is big interest as the field is a strong one with well seasoned men arrayed against one another.

Tewksbury Indians, Black Hawk and Bill Davis, will be the hard ones to beat out as they are the Longboats of the race and the two white men will have to show some wonderful speed and endurance to outlast the redmen.

Veteran Pat Dinneen of South Boston, the constant plugger, will have a host of followers who want to see him pull down first money, and the other local men, including Bill Prouty, will have a strong following Davis, the Indian, was the winner of the six day race at Wonderland last year and has won numerous races down in Philadelphia, where he is established.

Al Rinck, the New Yorker, will bear watching and Feeney, a Brookly plugger, is one of the selections.

Many pick John Goff, the Cambridge ex-amateur, as the dangerous man, as he has greatly improved and has been waiting for just such an occasion to show his real gait.

There will be some dark horses in the list and the topnotchers will have to make fast time to hold them in check.

While the race is on there will be bicycle events on the board track, an amateur card bringing out the best of the coast, and Champion Hugh MacLean will ride an exhibition two miles behind pace.

BOXING
BITS OF NEWS

There is little chance of seeing Battling Nelson and Joe Rivers, the Indian, in the ring at the finish of the first and second is no incentive for him. He has been matched to box Young Corbett III. in Colma, which was scheduled to go on at the end of the last fall before he was taken ill again.

* * *

Jimmy Coffroth is still making ready for the big bout between Joe Gans and Battling Nelson on Labor Day at Colma, and has every confidence in his faith in Ketchel as to a heavyweight possibility. He has already promoted aspects to get $50,000 with the match.

Billy Leary, the champion lightweight of New Bedford, will be seen in the ring at Fall River in a match with either of the following boxers: Joe Lopez, Harry Lewis, Sammy Kaufman or Young Corbett, before any club that will give satisfactory inducements.

Terry Carroll has been matched to go twenty rounds with Young Peter before the Butte, Mont., Athletic Club on July 23. Tibbs is a likely young heavyweight, and all of the boys will be looking for pounders in an almost Salt Lake City. Carroll and Peter, however, are both fighters who have been in the West.

* * *

Jack Johnson will box six scheduled rounds in New York on July 29 at the Polo Grounds with his sparring partner, Jim Barry, who says that he has resolved to end it fit and ready to begin training for the fight with the big negro champion.

Jimmy Corbett is tying hard to get Nelson and Wolgast to box twenty-five rounds at his stadium at Colma, Cal., but it is doubtful if he will get them first from this side of the Mississippi it looks like a match between Nelson and Rivers. The people of California surely do not consider that a featherweight can draw a crowd to see him box twenty-five rounds, as he cannot put the champion in ten rounds. There are many who think that Nelson will be lucky if he can get that route in a mark, but in a long bout Wolgast would lose sure.

Bert Keyes and Sammy Smith have been matched to appear at the Armory Athletic Club, Troy, N. Y., next Friday night. Keyes has been in training for the bout, and Smith is expected to arrive in the city on the 4th to get down to weight and work out with Keyes.

Young Corbett is going to stick on the coast until he wins a fight, or at least appears to do so. He will be seen in the ring again on August 7, when he will box Young Erne. Corbett and Erne will go on at the Mission Athletic Club, San Francisco, on that date. Erne has been offered a date at Los Angeles, but Rafael prefers the August date in Frisco.

Joe Wagner has signed another ten rounds with Dr. Hyman and will not engage in another bout until two weeks before the fight, when he will be ready to take on McGoorty. McGovern, in the meantime, will box Sam Robideau Friday night at the Armory, Fall River.

The latter will spend $250, entering McGovern's contract on behalf of Leary to fight any number of rounds at 116 pounds ringside. O'Leary is said to be coming fast and is a clever boxer, and his right hand is as strong and sound as ever. It will be his job to put up a fast final club that wants the match.

Jack Britton has failed to get Al Kaufman's signature to a contract for a fight with Young Corbett, and before Jim says in part: "Delaney told me he had signed Kaufman to box Corbett, but I guess he was only a friend of Al's and was ready to back him up in his talk. The fact is, I asked Al and he said Johnson would keep, so it looks like there would be no fight regarding a Kaufman-Jones Corbett match."

It would be a nice plan if Willie Britt took on Kaufman, winner take all, than step up with Leary. Both Kaufman and Britt have been in the ring often, he would make the Johnson match strong, but Sam would have to get down to whole thing by making short work of the Britt star.

Frank Brannigan is going to take on Charley Goldman at the National Club of Philadelphia on August 19. Tom Paley says he will come back and go up against the winner of the Brannigan go.

* * *

Manager Jones of the Whitehead Club, New York, will likely open up a new club in Brooklyn shortly. It will be in the Bedford district, within reach of New York, and the building seats 5,000.

* * *

Jim Coffroth has landed Attell again, and Abe will box Frankie Conley at Colma, Cal., on the Labor Day card. Conley is the championship, and if Abe loses he will take on welter and join the light weight class.

GLIDDEN TOUR IS OVER; WINNING CARS PICKED

By J. C. KERRISON.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 21.—The Pierce cars for the sixth consecutive time scored high honors in the A. A. A. contests for the Glidden and Dewar trophies, the four entries of that company finishing with clean scores at the conclusion of the 2,760 miles of driving, which closed in this city today.

Two were not alone, however, as three other cars finished the Glidden with clean scores, two of these were the Premier and the third was the Marmon, driven by Howard Marmon.

In the contest for the Dewar trophy these cars tabbed with clean scores, namely, the two Pierce entries and the Moline, the latter a Western product which throughout the hard fought contest has attracted no end of attention. There was not a single clean score car at the finish in the contest for the Detroit trophy.

That eight cars should come through this gruelling contest without securing a single point for road penalization is a most remarkable performance, as the conditions surrounding this test have been most exacting and of such a gruelling character that it is safe to say they will not be equalled or excelled in the very near future.

There have been mud runs and icy rides in the past, but never were enforced every one of the features of both, or one in which the performance of the men and machines were watched keener or closer in interest than the one which closed here.

When the cars left Omaha on the last trip of the tour a heavy shower was falling and decidedly against the cars finishing the 212 miles in the twelve hours' time allowance per hour. Nevertheless everyone got going and in the run to Kansas City every character of road conditions was encountered. Both of the downfalls came in the after part of the day, and Lewis had to be picked up by Chairman Climax Jim and Secretary Alexander.

There were deep, muddy holes, clear solid macadam, then some mud and sand and then a stretch of working might and main to keep up with the schedule, and when the cars were penalized.

The Premier was the one cars are entitled to considerable credit, for during the tour the car was given a schedule that never once failed to make the trip on time. The last two days Welly Jay has been driving his car with a broken spring and for over a score of miles he has been without a fan belt. His work has been high class throughout and he has certainly demonstration his ability to handle a big car as well as the rest of the men at the wheels.

Howard Marmon, with the car bearing his name, won his spurs in this, his first contest, and likewise continued the good record of the Marmon, for this makes the third consecutive year one of his cars has finished with a clean score.

Frank Wing of Boston, heretofore being the fortunate driver, was put out of the running by a slight mishap early in the tour. Since then, however, he has driven with distinction and it can be said that his car is in fine fettle of condition.

The Moline, which finished with a clean score was one of three cars comprising the dreadnaught squadron, and the work of all three was of a high class character.

While the road work is completed, there is yet one more task for all the cars, that is to pass the examination of the technical committee. This will start in on inspecting the first thing this morning, but will not be through until to-morrow.

It proposes to go over the cars with a fine tooth comb and if the personal is carried out there will not be a single clean score car in the four there.

However, be that as it may, it is a fact that the footing of the technical committee cannot take from any of these cars the excellence of their road performances.

THE HINTING GIRL

"Footpads and Train Robbers Are Not in It with the Hinting Girl When It Comes to Holding a Fellow Up and Divorcing Him from His Roll"

By DOROTHY DIX

CHOLLY was thoroughly exasperated the other day, and as he took a seat beside me in the Club I could see there was fire in his eyes and malice in his heart.

"Uncommon weather for this time of year," I said, with a view to soothing his feelings, whatever they might be, but he didn't notice my remark.

"Say," he began, belligerently, but with feeling, "why don't some of you people who write for the papers say something about the hinting girl?"

"Why don't you do it yourself?" I retorted, "the columns of the press are always open to 'Vox Populi,' and the 'Old Subscriber.' Besides," I added, mendaciously, "I don't know the hinting girl."

"I do," replied Cholly, "and the pleasure is expensive. See that," holding out a few pieces of small change, "an hour ago that was a ten spot. I met a lot of girls in front of an ice cream parlor, and that's what's left of it."

"Oh, well," I said comfortably, "one swallow doesn't make a Spring, you know. Maybe you'll have better luck next time."

"It wasn't one swallow," he replied gloomily. "It was ice cream, and soda, and cream puffs, and candy, and the Lord knows what all.

"I tell you, footpads and train robbers are not in it with the hinting girl when it comes to holding up a fellow and divorcing him from his wad. You can't lose her. She's on the job all the time.

"Now, there's nobody who admires women more than I do," and Cholly raised his hat, "and it's an exquisite happiness to feel that I am giving one a pleasure, but it makes me dead sore to be played for the easy mark and made to hand out my money whether I want to or not.

You Find Them Everywhere

"Everybody thinks that the ice cream and soda water girl is a joke—a mere pleasing figment of the humorous fancy —but she isn't. She's a cold, hard reality that most of us young fellows have our lives in cutting our wisdom teeth on. We sidestep her when we know her, but the trouble is that women are so deceitful-looking that you never can tell when a baby face little thing is going to develop into a hold-up artist.

"What's the matter, anyway, with girls eating enough at home to last them three or four hours? Why does a man have to feed her every time he takes her out?

"You know, if you've ever noticed it, that it is impossible to take the average girl to the theatre or any place of amusement, or even for a stroll down the street, without her remarking on the excellence of the ice cream and soda at so and so's, or what fine oysters they have somewhere else, or what delicious salad you can get at some other place.

"The hinting girl, if she's given to that sort of thing, mighty near strips you to the skin."

"That's all right for rich young fellows who have fathers able to foot their bills, but it's deuced hard on us poor ones, who are working on small salaries and trying to save up a little start in life.

"The girls," Cholly went on, "seem to go on the assumption that society is composed of the sons of millionaires. That's tommyrot. If only the rich young fellows went to the balls and receptions, the drawing rooms would look like hen parties. The rank and file of us young fellows who go are just as well born and well educated and well bred as the rich fellows, but we are dead poor.

"We hope to be running the big stores and manufactories and brokerages twenty-five years hence, but at the present we are getting—and glad to have it—an average salary of not over $150 a month.

"Now, I'd like to submit this problem to the young ladies who are studying higher mathematics: How is a man on that salary to pay for his clothes and board and laundry, hire cabs, buy theatre tickets and support afterward, send roses and violets, and still save something for the future? It's a corker, isn't it?

"Of course, no man who isn't a cad wants to go to a woman's hospitality and not make some return, but why don't girls make things easier for us?

He Did Save One Tie

"For instance, I like to take a girl to the theatre now and then, and I can afford that much, but if, when I ask her to go, she remarks on what lovely rooms young De Crouss sent her the last time he took her, and tells me that I can order the rich fare for a certain, and says something about supper afterward, don't you see she's gone through my pocket just as effectually as if I'd been looking down the barrel of a loaded revolver, instead of into the sweetest eyes that were ever seen.

"And this souvenir business," he went on wrathfully, "why, the hinting girl, if she's given to that sort of thing, mighty near strips you to the skin.

"Why, last Summer when I went off on my vacation I was rigged up fit to kill, and I struck a lot of these girls at a Summer resort. Before I knew it they had every one of my walking sticks for parasol handles, and my scarfpins and sleeve links, and I had to send back for neckties until my haberdasher intimated I had exhausted my credit and would have to send cash with the next order.

"Finally when I braced up and told a girl that I had to keep one tie to wear home on the cars she gave me a look that sent the mercury down to zero, and I bet she's telling pa that my middle name is Tightwaddo the Meak.

"Why do men stand for the hinting girl? Weak of them? I don't deny. Every man is a coward before a woman, and she can make him do jolly well what she pleases, but if she indicates him to spend money he cannot afford she is an accessory before the crime, and, I tell you, many a hinting girl ought to stand in the dock beside the poor devil who pleads guilty for embezzling his employer's money.

"This your street? Sorry, there's another chapter—"

But I had heard enough, for I knew that every word of it was true.

How Will It Be?

HOW will it be, when one of us, alone,
Goes on that strange, last journey of the soul;
That certain search for an uncertain goal;
That voyage on which no comradeship is known?
Will our dear sea sing with the old sweet tone
Though one sits stricken where its billows roll?
Will space be dumb or from the Mystic pole,
Will spirit messages be backward blown?
When our united lives are wrenched apart
And day no more means fond companionship,
When fervent night and lovely, languorous dawn
Are only memories to one sad heart,
And but in dreams love kisses burn the lip,
Dear God, how can this same fair world move on?

CHAPTER XXVIII.

In Which It Is Proved That One Does Not Always Think of Everything.

GREAT excitement prevailed when Rouletabille had finished. The courtroom became agitated with the murmurings of suppressed applause. Maitre Henri Robert called for an adjournment of the trial and was supported in his motion by the public prosecutor himself. The case was adjourned. The next day Monsieur Robert Darsac was released on bail, while Daddy Jacques received the immediate dispatch of "a no cause for action." Search was everywhere made for Frederic Larsan, but in vain. Monsieur Darsac finally escaped the awful calamity which, at one time, had threatened him. After a visit to Mademoiselle Stangerson, he was led to hope that she might, by careful nursing, one day recover her reason.

Rouletabille, naturally, became the "man of the hour." On leaving the Palais de Justice, the crowd bore him aloft in triumph. The press of the whole world published his exploits and his photograph. He, who had interviewed so many illustrious personages, had himself become illustrious personages, had himself become illustrious and was interviewed in his turn. I am glad to say that the enormous success in no way turned his head.

We left Versailles together, after having dined at "The Dog That Smokes." In the train I put a number of questions to him which, during our meal, had been on the tip of my tongue, but which I had refrained from uttering, knowing he did not like to talk "shop" while eating.

"My friend," I said, "that Larsan case is wonderful. It is worthy of you."

He begged me to say no more, and humorously pretended an anxiety for me should I give way to silly praise of him because of a personal admiration for his ability.

"I'll come to the point, then," I said, not a little nettled. "I am still in the dark as to your reason for going to Epinay. When you left the Glandier you had found out, if I rightly understand, all about Frederic Larsan; you had discovered the real murderer, and had attended the murderer's—"

"Quite so. And you," he said, turning the conversation, "did you suspect nothing?"

"Nothing."

"It's incredible!"

"I don't see how I could have suspected anything. You took great pains to conceal your thoughts from me. Had you already suspected Larsan when you sent for me to bring the revolver?"

Why Larsan Carried the Cane

"Yes. I had come to that conclusion through the incident of the inexplicable gallery. Larsan's return to Mademoiselle Stangerson's room, however, had not then been cleared up by the eyeglasses. My suspicions were the outcome of pure reasoning only; and the idea of Larsan being the murderer was so extraordinary that I resolved to wait for actual evidence before venturing to act. Nevertheless, the evidence was there, and I sometimes spoke to the detective in a way that ought to have opened your eyes. I spoke disparagingly of the methods. But until I found the eyeglasses I could but look upon my suspicion of him in the light of an absurd hypothesis only. You can imagine my elation after I had explained Larsan's movements. I remembered well rushing into my room like a madman and crying to you: 'I'll get the better of the great Fred. I'll get the better of him in a way that will make a sensation!'

"I was then thinking of Larsan, the murderer. It was the same evening Darsac begged me to watch over Mademoiselle Stangerson. I made no efforts until after we had dined with Larsan, until ten o'clock. He was right there before me, and I could afford to wait. You ought to have suspected, because when we were talking of the murderer's arrival, I said to you: 'I am quite sure Larsan will be here to-night.'

"But one important point escaped us both. It was one which ought to have opened our eyes to Larsan. Do you remember the bamboo cane? I was surprised to find Larsan had made no use of that evidence against Robert Darsac. Had it not been purchased by a man whose description tallied exactly with that of Darzac? Well, just before I saw him off at the train, after the recess during the trial, I asked him why he hadn't used the cane evidence. He told me he had never had any intention of doing so; that our discovery of it in the little inn at Epinay had much embarrassed him. If you will remember, he told us then that the cane had been given him in London. Why did we not immediately say to ourselves: 'Fred is lying. He could not have had this cane in London.' He was not in London. He bought it in Paris! Then you found out, on inquiry at Cassette's, that the cane had been bought by a person dressed very like Robert Darsac, though, as we learned later, from Darsac himself, it was not he who had made the purchase. Couple this with the fact we already knew, from the letter at the poste restante, that there was actually a man in Paris who was passing as Robert Darsac, why did we not immediately fix on Fred himself?

Many Suspicious Actions

"Of course, his position at the Surete was against us; but when we saw the evident eagerness on his part to find contrary evidence against Darzac, nay, even the passion he displayed in his pursuit of the man, the lie about the cane should have had a new meaning for us. If you ask why Larsan bought the cane, if he had no intention of manufacturing evidence against Darzac by means of it, the answer is quite simple. He had been wounded in the hand by Mademoiselle Stangerson, so that the cane was useful to enable him to close his hand in carrying it. You remember I noticed that he always carried it?

"All these details came back to my mind when I had once fixed on Larsan as the criminal. But they were too late then to be of any use to me. On the evening when he pretended to be drugged I looked at his hand and saw a thin silk bandage covering the signs of a slight, healing wound. Had we taken a quicker initiative at the time Larsan told us that lie about the cane, I am certain he would have gone off, to avoid suspicion. All the same, we worried Larsan or Bellmeyer without our knowing it."

"But," I interrupted, "if Larsan had no intention of using the cane as evidence against Darzac, why had he made him-self up to look like the man when he went to buy it?"

"He had not specially 'made up' as Darzac to buy the cane; he had come straight to Cassette's immediately after he had attacked Mademoiselle Stangerson. His wound was troubling him and, as he was passing along the Avenue de l'Opera, the idea of the cane came to his mind and he acted on it. It was then 6 o'clock. And I, who had hit upon the very hour of the occurrence of the tragedy, almost convinced that Darsac was not the criminal, and knowing of the cane, I still never suspected Larsan! There are times—"

"There are times," I said, "when the greatest intellects—" Rouletabille shut my mouth. I still continued to joke him; but, finding he did not reply, I saw he was no longer paying any attention to what I was saying. I found he was fast asleep

No Substitute for Love---By Beatrice Fairfax

THIS other day I spent an hour with a girl who considered herself the most unhappy girl in the world.

"What is the matter?" I asked her. "You are young and good looking and popular and you have every luxury. What do you want?"

"Just the one thing that I can't have," she said, slowly. "I want the love of one person."

"And are you sure you can't have it?" "Yes," she answered simply; "he is a married man."

There was no answer to that, for I knew she could not have the thing she craved, and words seemed empty comfort.

After a time she will get over this forbidden love and be happy once more, but in the meantime she will hunger for it and, nothing will seem worth living for.

It was of no use to tell her that she had youth and beauty and riches; she would have given them all for the love of that one man.

Pain, Like All Else, Dies

Poor little child! My heart ached for her. She did not want to be comforted; she just wanted to revel in her misery.

Haven't you felt like that—like curling into the wind for miles; like going out into a fierce storm; like hurting yourself in some way, and all because your heart was almost numb with misery?

After a time the pain eases and then some blessed day you awake to find it gone, just as will this little friend I talked to yesterday.

There is no pain in the world like the pain that comes from an aching heart, and every woman on earth suffers it at some time or other. But we all get over it, little sisters, don't forget that.

If one man is false to you, you must not let his cruelty poison your whole life. There are many good men in the world and your good man is coming to you, guided by a wisdom greater than your own.

We are, mostly, such little slips of girls when we suffer our heartaches, and that makes them all the harder to bear. It is no comfort to be told that we will get over a thing that we don't want to get over, is it?

And if we can't have the one thing we want so much, we must make the best of our other blessings, dears.

We must be grateful for health and the beautiful earth and the love of friends and family.

I saw a poor little, pitifully deformed woman the other day, and I said to myself, "What would you do if you were handicapped like that? Wouldn't you whine and bemoan your fate?"

There is much we had but what it might be a good deal worse.

Let Us Be Thankful Instead

Let us be thankful for the sorrows we have escaped, instead of bewailing those that have come to us.

Comfort yourself with the thought that weeping lasteth for a night, but joy cometh in the morning."

It seems like a platitude to tell you that time helps all heart troubles, but nevertheless it is true. Just put all your strength and will into bearing the trouble bravely, while it lasts, and some day it will fly away and peace will reign in its stead.

To-Day's Best Story

MOST of us are acquainted with the person who asks obvious questions—the sort of man who stops you in the middle of a blinding pelt and asks you if you are in a hurry, and is eternally qualifying for a membership in the Gimlet Club.

Mr. B—is one of these pests, and during a walk abroad the other morning he paused in astonishment outside a friend's house. Before it stood three huge moving vans, the lawn was almost covered with articles of furniture of various sorts—pictures, wardrobes and china. And there was his old friend, B——, begrimed, weary and dishevelled, directing operations in his shirt-sleeves.

"What, B——," exclaimed Mr. E—— "are you moving?"

"Not at all—not at all," snapped B—— with elaborate sarcasm. "I am taking my furniture out for a ride!"

PERCY THE PRESS AGENT

He Tells the Show Girl of His Thrilling Escape.

By HANK

"DID you ever have our heartrendeth escapes, Percy?" asked the Show Girl.

"I have one every evening," replied Percy calmly.

"You do?" exclaimed the Show Girl. "What do you mean?"

"Takin' a chance on digestin' these butter cakes we're eatin'," said Percy as he reached across the restaurant table for another.

Percy Knew About Danger

"I wonder how it feels to face terrible danger," mused the Show Girl, disregarding the comment of her companion.

"Like ridin' down in an express elevator for the first time," said Percy.

"How do you know?" queried the Show Girl.

"Well," said Percy, "that time I was stranded out West I had to hoof it for some miles through the Rockies, countin' the ties on a one-track railroad that, at times, took me over cliffs and precipices a million feet down."

"Huh?" interrupted the Show Girl, questionlatly.

"Well, maybe not as much as that," corrected Percy. "Just when you got on one of them trestle bridges and looked over the edge, a river at the bottom of the chasm looked as wide as a pearl."

"Chasm?" asked the Show Girl, innocently. "I thought that was a kind of a hen."

"Not a spasm," sighed Percy wearily, "a chasm—a precipice, a crevasse—a slit between two mountains.

"Listen? Well, one night I was hoofin' it along the track. It was pitch dark. I didn't know where I was and couldn't see more than three feet in front of me. All of a sudden I realized I had come to one of them trestle bridges. I decided to start across, because I knew most of them weren't very short, and I could probably get across in time if I only made tryin' enough.

"I picked my way along for maybe ten minutes, but there didn't seem to be no end to the blamed thing. All at once I heard a train comin' behind me. I looked back, and away off in the darkness I could see the glimmer of a headlight. I knew I had gone too far to retrace my steps, so I went ahead as fast as I could, but pretty soon I felt the train get on the trestle and knew it was up to me to do something quickly."

Over a Bottomless Pit

"Why didn't you stand to one side?" asked the Show Girl.

"There wasn't any side," answered Percy. "Them blame trestles are made so's the engineer can't run and nothin' else.

"Well, when the headlight got good and close I climbed down between the ties, to hang on by my hand and let the train go over me. I had done it before, and I wasn't much scared, except that my watch dropped out of my pocket, and, although I listened for it to hit the bottom I didn't hear a sound. So I figured I was hanging over another one of those bottomless pits.

"Well, the train came along, makin' the old trestle shake so that I could hardly hold on. Just as the loco got over me a red hot cinder dropped on the back of my right hand. I let go with a yell and hung on with my left as long as I could. But the strain was too great and I had to let go and drop."

Afraid to let go, not knowing where he would light.

"And—and—you"—began the Show Girl, wide-eyed and open-mouthed.

"I dropped about seventy-five feet into soft sand and bumped my nose on my watch, breaking the crystal," said Percy.

"Dead!" exclaimed the Show Girl. "How did you feel when you let go? Did all your past life come before you and did you say a little prayer as you fell?"

"No," replied her companion. "Nothing came before me and I didn't say any prayer."

"What did you say?" asked the Show Girl.

"Nothing that was fit for a lady's ears to hear," said Percy. "But just a few words expressive-like, which, if words could hurt would have made that blamed old loco motive jump the track."

ALABAMA TO VOTE INCOME TAX MONDAY

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 31.—The word "favorable" written across the resolution introduced in the House of this State by Orlena Sam Witt (Dem.) of Hamilton and into the Senate by Senator S. H. Fuqua of Selma to-day officially calendared action of the judiciary committees of the Alabama Legislature on the income tax amendment or proposed by the United States Congress. The reports are both committees unanimous, no objection to either of the Houses being filed.

When the Legislature reassembles Monday the resolution will be ordered to be taken from the calendar and voted upon. That afternoon Governor B. B. Comer will begin the instrument, at the same time registering his approval of the proposition and Alabama's official vote.

Up to the present time not a dissenting vote has been offered to the bill and none is expected. Much credit should have been given the matter consideration only to the extent of inspecting it. While Governor Comer, one of the richest men in the State, is openly in sympathy with the measure, if restocking the United States Treasury. The bill will pass both houses of the Legislature unanimously, Mr. Comer said to-day that the resolution would be approved by him, and there is of no doubt what he will ever as to the outcome.

SOUTHERN COMEDY HIT AT LEXINGTON

In the open-air theatre at Lexington Park for the coming week are Kemsy and Hollis in "College Boys"; Bates and Norville in a rollicking act entitled "Two Chaps from the Dutch Girl"; De Lisle, the Juggler; William Grant, baritone, and as a special attraction for the week Lew Cooper and his company in a Southern comedy act. Motion pictures and illustrated songs complete the bill. The select dancing parties Wednesday and Saturday evenings and the six Sunday night concerts are strong park features. There are always other attractions, from the magnificent restaurant and splendid concerts down to the free tobogan and swings for the young folks. The SUNDAY AMERICAN will distribute a free ticket of admission good on Tuesday or Friday. Don't miss it, for one of the greatest inland park in New England.

JOIN AMERICAN CLUB AT THE WHITE CITY

There has been a record attendance at White City theatre, during the week just beginning with the Sunday American Outing Club's visit on Monday and Tuesday when each reader carried to the White City free tickets printed in the Sunday paper, saving them forty-five cents in making the round of the park. There will be more coupons in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN, and admission will be always free. A free ticket will be given for the big theatre, another for the Nichols's Jungle show and other tickets will be published Sunday, each giving a ten-cent glow to the park's many rides and concessions. They are for the big chutes, the scenic railway, the airship and the other big attractions. Make sure of the SUNDAY AMERICAN, else the tickets be missed. Remember next Monday or Tuesday, afternoon or evening.

MORE FREE TICKETS TO SEE WONDERLAND

The attendance afternoon and evening at Wonderland is breeding that of last year, and almost equals the record of Paris's second season. The "Cinderella" production is being enlarged each week, and the spectacle is becoming almost daily. The afternoon performance is at 3:30 and the evening performance at 8:15. Readers who show being a free open-air attraction goes with the big vaudeville show, which plays twice, with adults, are admitted free up to 6 o'clock on the next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN will be found the usual free Wonderland coupon, good for any performance and "Cinderella," a free ticket to the Chutes and Scenic Railway, half-fare coupon to the park's leading ride and shows at the rate of a ride and five cents for ten cents' worth of amusement.

Spain's Royal Half-Idiot—and His Troubles

There Is Trouble in Spain—Trouble, That Is to Say, for the Worthless "Royal" Race That Live Like Parasites on the Spanish People. Hope for the REAL MEN AND WOMEN of Spain

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner.

The people, fortunately, are rebelling against their half-idiot Government, the asinine mixture of superstition, bigotry, ignorance and cruelty that has ruled Spain for centuries.

The downward path, so well mapped out and explained by Buckle in his magnificent "History of Civilization in England," is nearing an end. The people of Spain, a great and powerful people, will get rid of their King, throw off the cunning rule of bigoted exploiters and restore to the peninsula the intelligence and power of the old days.

Since the vile and blasphemous Torquemada began burning men alive in the name of God Almighty, and torturing the helpless "for the salvation of their souls," Torquemada's country and Torquemada's methods have gone farther and farther down the hill—Spain and Portugal have sunk hand in hand, and they are just about at the bottom.

The King with the half-idiot face and the half-starved people will part company soon, let us hope. All power to THE REAL MEN OF SPAIN and to their rebellion against darkness, superstition and "the divine right" of the half-idiot!

A Tariff Commission Imperative

The tariff conferees in Senate and House have under consideration a bill for a tariff commission, and this bill is now in crisis before the joint committee of the Senate and the House.

The representatives of two hundred and thirty organizations of citizens are pleading with Congress to pass the measure.

Every instinct of common sense and of common safety should invoke a favorable consideration and a prompt agreement upon this bill.

Surely, if ever a vexed and weary Congress had an object lesson of necessary reform, it has been presented by this tariff wrangle of 1909.

The pull and haul of personal and rival interests have complicated every tariff debate, and the schedules as presented by the Senate vote have been a pitiful makeshift of illogical compromise and of sectional selfishness.

Framed by partisans and representatives of local and sectional interests, the Aldrich tariff is a mongrel of law and a misfit of justice. It is incoherent, inconsistent and unjust. It enthrones privilege and it flouts the platforms of party and the principles of popular government.

There never can be a wise and equitable tariff constructed by trading partisans and special attorneys.

The present Congress and the Aldrich tariff as first presented are lamentable demonstrations of this proposition.

Nothing short of the deliberate and unbiased judgment of experts brought to bear upon the industrial and commercial conditions of the country can present a schedule of duties that will be just to all classes and fair to the Government.

Nothing save an impartial body of this kind, making careful investigation of statistics and the shifting conditions of industrial life, can construct a scientific and satisfactory tariff.

A scientific protective tariff, as the American has always contended, is one that makes up the difference between the cost of production at home and the cost abroad.

It must keep in mind the revolving changes in our industrial life.

It should apply in general only to immature domestic industries that promise to grow to self-support within a reasonable time.

There should be a time limit to protection, and a renewal only on demonstration of need.

IT SHOULD BEAR EQUALLY ON ALL CLASSES, AND IT SHOULD AVOID PRIVILEGE AND SPECIAL FAVOR AS AN ECONOMIC FESTILENCE.

No man of the Aldrich type will ever frame for the American people a tariff like this. No partisan or sectional attorney is fit to plead or to plan protective schedules for an entire country.

An intelligent and impartial tariff commission, always desirable, has been proved by the present fiasco at Washington to be an absolute necessity.

The American sincerely trusts that the tariff conferees will promptly recognize this necessity and provide for a permanent tariff commission in the future in the completed bill.

It is to be hoped that the President, whose recent attitude in this economic crisis has been most admirable, will lay the weight of his great influence in the scale to favor a commission which he of all men must recognize as indispensable in the tariff making of the future.

No report of the conferees that omits a tariff commission will satisfy the intelligent people of the country.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

AMBITION

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Ambition is needed for everything in this world. If you want to be the President you have got to have the ambition in you, and you have got to work hard to secure it also. A man who has and enough in him and has the ambition in him to do what he wants to will succeed without any doubt whatever.

There are some who denounce ambition, but I think we ought to make distinction between true and false ambition. The desire of superiority is an honorable motive if it leads to honorable exertion. I will mention Napoleon as an illustration of false ambition. He brought misery and ruin to prosperous nations. Again, there are some who are ambitious to do better than their neighbors, and their principal thoughts are centred upon the tie of their cravat or the cut of their coat, if young men, or upon the richness and style of their dresses if they belong to the other sex. Beau Brummell is a noted instance of this kind of ambition.

Take Franklin for an instance, who, induced by an honorable ambition, worked his way up to a high civil station as well as a commanding position in the scientific world, and would like to appeal to boys and young men to direct their ambition into worthy channels, so that, even if they could not leave behind a great name, they might at least lead useful lives, and in dying have the satisfaction of thinking that they have done some service to the human race.

PRAISES EDITORIALS.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I have been reading your editorials for the past two years and have come to the conclusion that they are the best and most interesting.

Your editorial on "Education, the First Duty of Government," has been read by me, and I cannot find any fault with the statements contained therein.

JOSEPH BISTRONG.

DR. ELIOT'S BOOK LIST

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—It was refreshing to read your timely article on Professor Eliot's "preposterous" list of books in the AMERICAN. The article was timely for two very enlightening reasons: First, that the list was preposterous, and, secondly, for the reason that the glamour that has surrounded the honored head of the ex-president of Harvard College might prove an ignis fatuus to young men leaving college in the selection of books for their literary and aesthetic improvement—a list that would lead them into the morass and keep them floundering round for an ordinary span of life, with hardly a gleam of light.

It was a courageous and progressive step to thus beard the lion in his own den, so to speak. I had been looking for such a move from some man of literary reputation to take up the cudgels and smash this benighted idol, which, no matter how well-intentioned, is not the less a false one.

All honor, from the lowest to the highest in the land, to the dignified head of Harvard for so many years; but it would be a grave mistake to let go unchallenged what might otherwise lead to disastrous results. Being the personification of dignity and benignity does not make him impeccable in this matter, and it often happens that men grown old in pedagogic pursuits and in the art of commanding are often inclined to be overpedantic and rutty in their public utterances.

Your vital article has given food for very serious thought and much discussion, which is bound in any case to do a vast amount of good from whatever viewpoint your readers may choose to look at it.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WELL, sed Pa when he came home last nite, I see that another one of our Senators has disgraced himself. Senator Stone, of Missouri, slapped a pullman waiter the other day on his way to Washington. It seems that the waiter had got a little fresh. Pa sed, beekaus the papers sed that he beekame surly & impudent. Anyhow, the Senator slapped him good & plenty.

I doont think that was a very nice thing for a Senator to do, sed Ma. I doont know, sed Pa, maybe he was right. Of course, sed Pa, the only time I licked a cullurd gent was the time I put Jack Johnson away, but I am not sure that I wuddent do it agguess. The time you put Jack Johnson away? sed Ma. What are you giving me?

Yes, sed Pa, I put Jack Johnson away. It was another Jack Johnson, sed Pa, not the prize fiter. He was a waiter in a cafay oaver in Baltimore. He brought me sum consommy & it wasn't clear. It was too cloudy. What do you mean by bringing me cloudy supe, I asked him. I am a cloudy waiter, he sed to me. With that, Pa sed, I got up and slapped the supe tureen on his hed. Strong tureen though it was, it shuddered & then broke. It took ten minutes to bring him back, sed Pa. The reesun it took so long to bring him back, he chased me clear through four (4) blocks.

Well, sed Ma, I think it is beneeth the dignity of a Senator to indulge in fiteing, jest the same, & I think it is not, sed Pa, beekaus if any waiter ever gits fresh with me, he is going to git his face massaged, especially a pullman waiter. Cum on, now, & go to dinner, Pa sed.

All the way to the cafay, where we was going to have our dinner, Pa was telling Ma & me anour the way to rule waiters. They shud be handeled vary careful, sed Pa, not too easy & not too ruff. Wen a waiter gives me good service I am his pal, Pa sed, & I kick in with a good tip. Wen he is not a good waiter I jest give him one (1) stern look & he knows enuff to change his tacktieks. The waiters all like me, sed Pa.

Then we got to the cafay, & sat down to have our dinner, & a waiter calm oaver in wait on us. He was one of the biggest waiters wich I had ever seen. The number on his coat was 23 & Pa beegan to laff. That is a grate number you have on yure coat, my frend, sed Pa. Yes, sed the waiter, it is a grate number, but I want you to cut out that My Frend stuff. I wuddent speek to you on my day off, the waiter sed. What are you & yure lady frend going to eat with yure knives?

Mercy, sed Ma, let us go to sum other place. No, sed Pa, we will stay here now & walk this impudent hound bring us everything in the plaice. See here, sed Pa, where is the manager. He is out, sed the tuff waiter. Isent that the manager oaver there, sed Pa. Who, sed the waiter, do you meen the man with the shoe on each foot? That is my brother, sed the waiter. He is awful wild, but he meens well.

See here, sed Pa, I dident cum in here to be insulted. Neether did I, sed the waiter. If you say too much sum of yure teeth nite git in the supe.

Mercy, sed Ma aggeun, we must not eet in this plaice. Then Ma got up with me & Pa got up too & sed to the waiter I will settle with you sum time wen I am not with a lady. I am afreidn that will be a long time, sed the waiter, I nevver saw you without one.

Then Ma looked at Pa kind of funny. Pa was red in the face beekaus the waiter had seared him, & Ma was waiting for Pa to call the waiter down & then Ma sed, Well, Jeff, why doant you start sumthing.

Pa took us to a other cafay, where there was lady waiters. Ma laffed at him all the way hoam.
